UNTUCKED

A year to relax, unwind, and prepare for the future is at hand. For the first time in six years, Forest Park students found themselves with the ability to enter the school building without the torture, confinement, and oppression that resulted from the school's shirt-tucking rule. We, the Tracer staff, wanted to incorporate this laid-back feeling into the yearbook to commemorate the 2005-2006 school year as the year that we regained the freedom we had longed for. Thus, UNTucked has become the theme for the year. In a way, the dress code change also changed something in the students. We feel that the year will provide many memories that can only come from relaxation. We hope that students will remember this year as the year of good times, friendships, and moments of introspection, and remember it as the year that we became UNTucked.

A picture is worth a thousand words, or so the story goes,
Each moment is a picture, unique to the story it shows,
The entire year's a tapestry, and with each moment grows,
Ever changing, always new, as the year unfolds.

There's those you'll never forget, and those you wish you could,
The jock, the brain, the gothic girl that you never understood,
The friend who always helped you out, the slacker who never would,
A never-ending list of names, those you knew or knew you should.

With sports and clubs, the marching band, so many things to do,
The musical, the talent show, and more before the year is through,
To each his/her own, and so you do what you chose to do,
Make a choice and do your best, you represent the school.

So much to do in these years, as they are passing by,
Dreams and goals are in your reach, reach out to the sky,
The future is long, the past behind, a challenge in your mind,
To prove yourself, to be unique, to finally touch the sky.

A picture is worth a thousand words, or so the story goes,
Each moment is a picture, unique to the story it shows,
The entire year, a tapestry, unceasing, it always grows,
And so you live, you continue to weave, as your story unfolds.

STUDENTS UNCOVER NEW BEGINNINGS

Juniors Ashton Fleck and Paige Lubbehuesen spent a free study hall catching up on their summers.

Freshman Katie Demuth approves of the school's pizza after not having any for three long months.

Forest Park students began their year on Thursday, August 18. With many new classes available, new clubs to sign up for, and the adjustment for students as they changed rank in the social structure, the year began as an exciting experience. They began the day in a school-wide assembly that gave students a glimpse into the way teachers lived in high school. As teachers lined up in order of their graduation year beginning with the earliest, the young scholars were exposed to poodle skirts, leather jackets, and almost every style that people considered popular through the various decades. Everyone spent the day adjusting to the new way to pay for lunch and the new dress code. Fortunately most students involved enjoyed spending time with their friends and not having to work.

A group of sophomores catch up with each other over their lunch period.

After the convocation, Mr. Jessee sat down for a chat with the seniors about the upcoming year that would include many important events.

Carrie Jones, senior, had to learn the new lunch system in order to pay for her meal.

Amber Knust helps kindergartners put on their Red Ribbon Week bracelets.

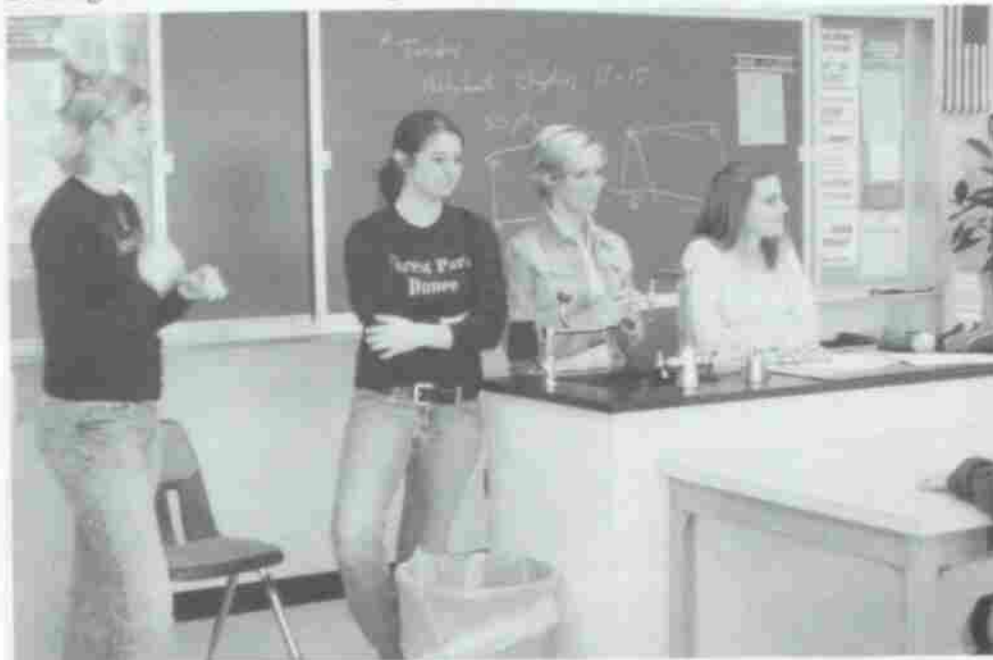

Wesley Warren adds her hand to SADD's campaign of "Hand in hand we take a stand against drugs."

Students take a stand

The SADD club was very active this year volunteering time. They helped area students and sponsored many projects to encourage students to be drug free.

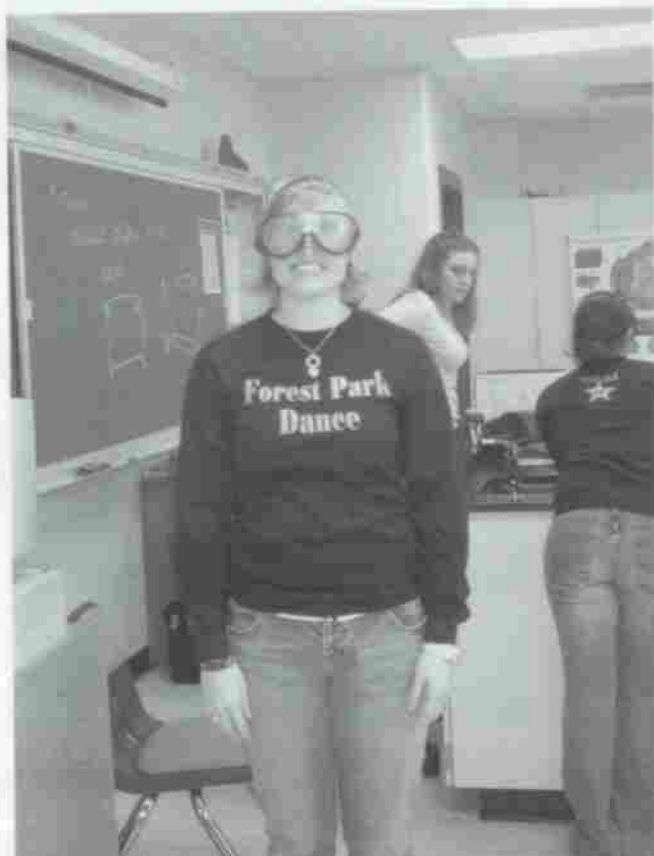

The All-Star club helped with Red Ribbon Week and made their regular trips to the elementary schools to talk to students about drugs and alcohol.

The PEP students of 2005-2006 talked to seventh, eighth, and ninth graders about the truths of drugs, sex, pregnancy, and peer pressure.

Emily, Nikki, Cassie, and Kyla discuss the influences of media with their PEP class.

Nathan Allen and Trac Childress answer tough questions during PEP.

During a PEP presentation, Emily Hildenbrand uses special goggles to show how drinking impairs your balance and vision.

Kyle Schroering assists kids during Red Ribbon Week. The All-Stars traveled to area elementary schools to remind kids to be drug-free.

Dana Lindauer does her senior duty to get the crowd pumped.

Camille Hagedorn helps the Student Council and hydrates the crowd.

Megan Lampert gets ready to hold the hoop.

Stephanie Fisher and the pep band provide heart pounding tunes.

Brad Weyer brings out the bricks.

Daniel Dilger helps prepare the crowd for an exciting game.

Amber Knust hopes the team can pull off the win.

The spirit club held pep sessions and served breakfast for athletes at school and made their voices heard at games.

The seniors decorate the quad to support winter sports.

Ali Wylam and Kelsey Uebelhor decorate the sophomore hallway.

StuCo president Nikki Berg hands the canned goods over to Mrs. Paula Peter.

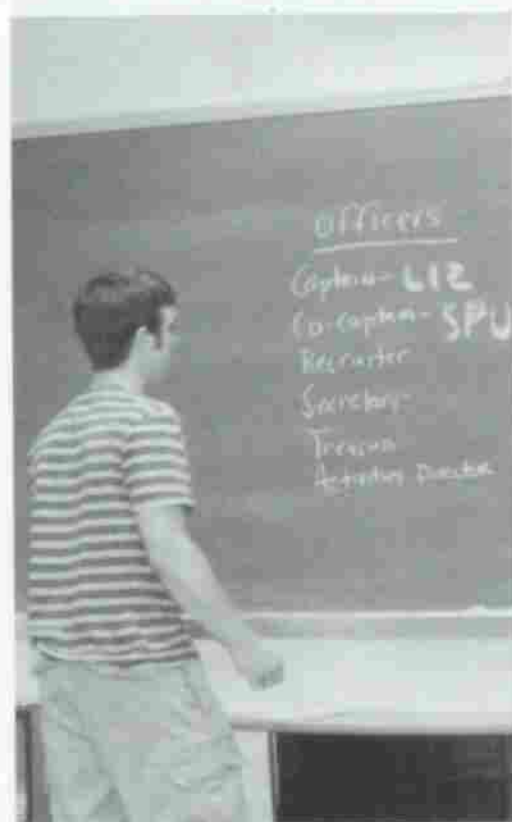

Student Council and FCA make the year memorable

The Student Council made Holiday Ball and homecoming possible. They also had a canned food drive for the local food banks and raised money for leukemia research.

Orange bracelets were sold to raise money for leukemia research.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes members hold hands and say a prayer to end one of their meetings.

FP clubs reach out to help others

Senior Ashley Schepers and junior Ashley Fromme work together in the quad.

Freshman Jeff Brier helps to keep the Earth clean by being part of the recycling club.

Senior Eli Major cleans out a semester's worth of newspapers from his locker.

FP's recycling club is responsible for collecting each room's recycling boxes on the first Monday of every month. They also host the annual Lunch on the Lawn to celebrate Earth Day. This year's officers are Eli Major, president, Jim Gregory, vice-president, Katie Major, secretary, and Sonya Andry, treasurer.

Senior Jim Gregory becomes aggravated when his plan to dump the box doesn't work.

Forest Park Key Club members discuss what they think will happen during the first general session of convention.

The FP Key Club attended the Indiana District Convention in Columbus, IN on April 7- 9. The club also helped out with the Kiwanis Pancake Breakfast and Chriskendelmarkt. Senior Steffi Mehringer served as the 2005-06 Lt. Governor for the Lincoln division. Next year, Jonathan Klem will take her place.

FFA excels at community service

FFA Sponsor Doug Walker said this year the club members put in a lot more community service hours. This was due to a new requirement that each member put in 10 community service hours each year. Two of the service projects were landscaping at Ferdinand Elementary and building a shed for Habitat for The FFA chorus included three FP members, Matt Kern, Ariel Dooley, and Katie Demuth.

Josh Greener accepts the Chapter Foundation Award for Forest Park FFA chapter.

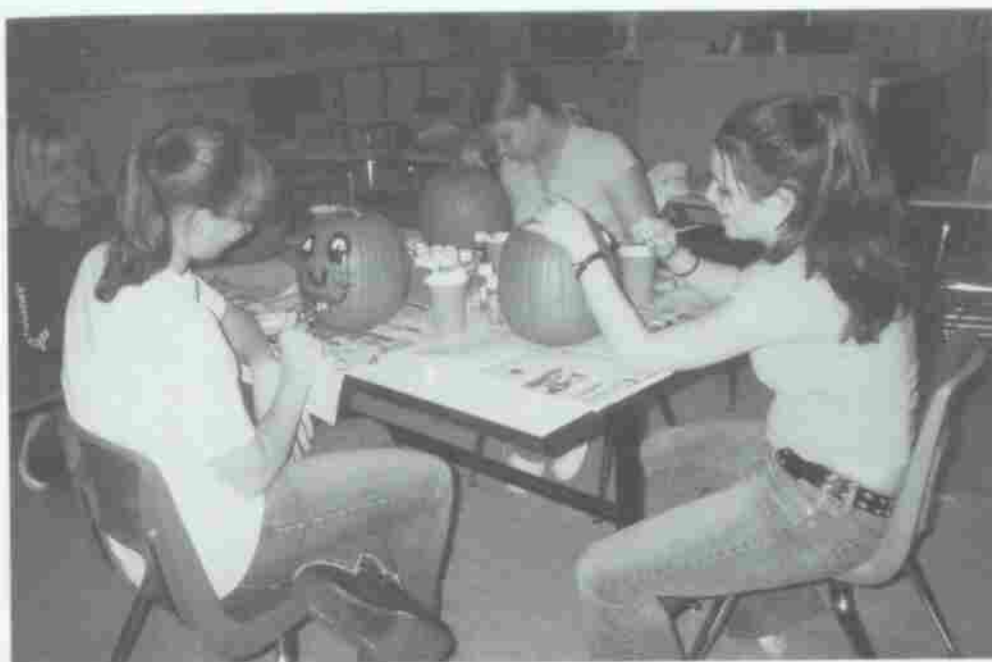

FFA clubs prepare for future

Throughout the year FFA participates in a variety of contests such as soil or dairy judging. The members of FFA get hands on experience in agriculture-related fields to prepare them for the future.

FCCLA does many activities throughout the school year. This year they painted pumpkins and hosted a Halloween party for children who live in the school district. They also attended their district convention.

FCCLA paints pumpkins to help make the Halloween season more enjoyable for local children.

Seniors John-Paul Verkamp, Tim James, and Lindsay Hoffman are ready for the quiz bowl to begin.

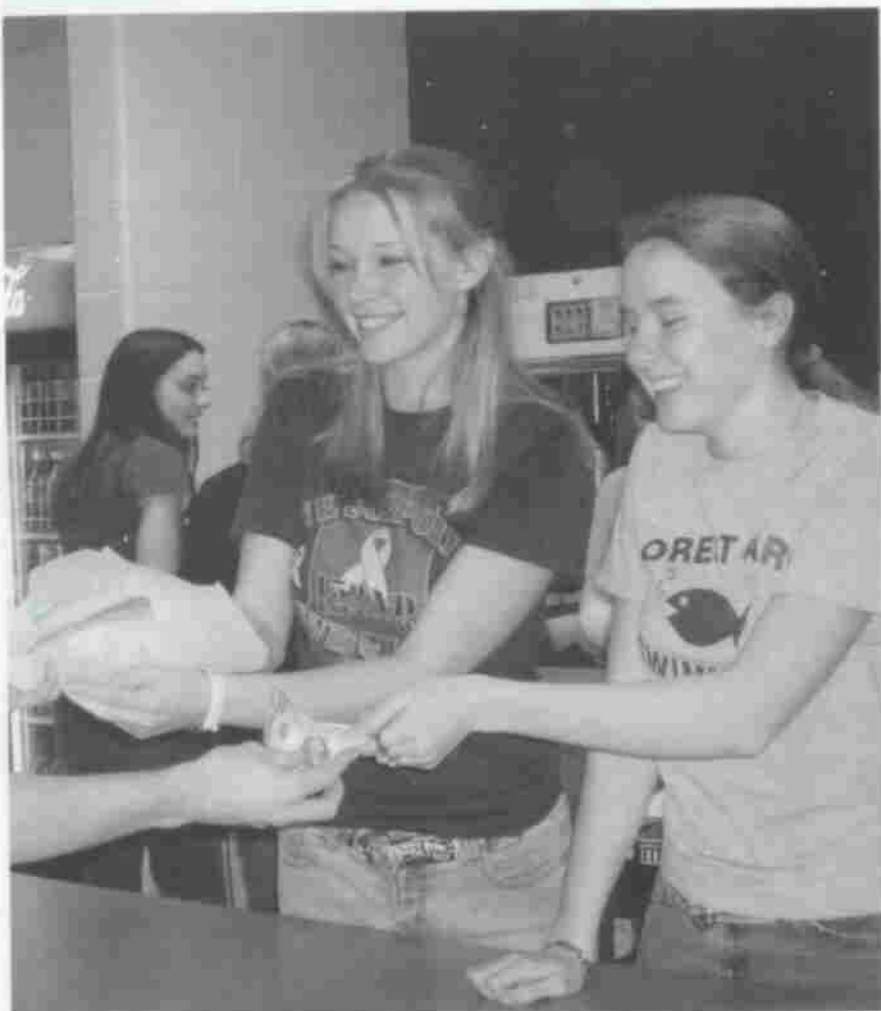

Service with a smile

FP clubs find ways to help others

The Forest Park Beta Club and National Honor Society have been hard at work this year. Under the leadership of the officers, the Beta members were well prepared for the state convention held at Indianapolis on November 11 and 12. The Beta Club also held the annual Spaghetti Dinner to feed the hungry musical spectators.

This year, NaHoSo has focused more on service hours. Each member was required to complete at least 20 service hours by the end of the year. Beta and NaHoSo members also shared the responsibility of working the concession stands at a boys' basketball game.

Lookout editor Kurt Blunk prepares the computers for a productive year.

Mr. Walston checks out the sign reserving Forest Park seats at the Media Day awards ceremony.

Forest Park journalism students began the 2006 yearbook with a morning of computer training on June 23, just three days after finishing the 2005 yearbook. The school year started with students busily preparing the publications. Under the leadership of Kurt Blunk and Autumn Bolte, the Lookout staff dealt easily with publication changes. The Tracer also took on some new changes. For the first time, the entire yearbook was made on computers. Journalism I, II, and III united during the year with their shirts featuring the sanest of the crowd. Between the first-ever Secret Santa Exchange and parties at Mr. Walston's house, the group made it a year of memories.

Kenja Albrecht was an exchange student from Hanover, Germany. She stayed with the Ray Major family in Ferdinand.

Kenja said, "The school system (in Germany) is very different. I have to take 15 different classes, and I've got a different schedule every day of the week. We also don't have a cafeteria in my school. Sports aren't part of the school either, and so there isn't really school spirit in Germany."

She said what she will remember most about America is, "All the nice people I met and all the new places I visited."

FP administration and faculty rank among the best

Two years in a row we have had an amazing ride for the Forest Park Ranger Nation. Who would have thought that our little school would lead the state in basketball as State Champs two years in a row? We also produced a state champion in dance and sent the D.I. team to the National Contest in Nashville, Tenn. We continue to have some of the highest ISTEP scores in the state of Indiana. Forest Park also set high standards during the year for band, FFA, Academic Bowl, and many of the numerous clubs and sports activities our school offers. The program called Renaissance added a whole new meaning to the student recognition for excellence.

The community, parents, student participants, coaches, sponsors, school staff members, administrators, and school board all worked together to have one of the most influential school years in the history of our school.

The rich and rewarding tradition of our school will live on and touch many lives in the future. It is the continuous quest for excellence and perfection that inspires the students and staff to do their to do their best in every area. it's exciting to think of the future of Forest Park with the positive effects of the new Cedar Crest Intermediate School and having football added to our athletic program.

As you visit our school through this yearbook, I hope you will develop the sense of pride that all of us here at Forest Park have in common. I think you will agree that we have had a remarkable year of success. I greatly appreciate our, students, and most importantly the many hours of work and dedication our yearbook staff has given to this yearbook. They have provided each of us an excellent review of the year in pictures and factual reporting. Sit back, get comfortable, and enjoy a wonderful review of the school year of 2005-2006.

The school board members are Mr. Larry Hochgesang, Mr. Kent Uebelhor, Mr. Don Loepker, Mr. Ernie Brames, and Mr. Bryan Luebbehusen.

Marching Rangers discover "The Presence of Hope"

Senior John-Paul Verkamp rocks out as a member of the few, the proud, the FP pep band.

Jenna Lindauer, junior, practices with the rest of the colorguard beside the superintendent's office.

One of the pep band's changes this year consisted of including the marching band's bass drums on the floor to contribute to the beat.

The Forest Park Marching Rangers had a successful season under the leadership of their second year director, Mr. Chad Gayso. The 106 members traveled to Indianapolis on October 22 to compete at state with their show "The Presence of Hope" which contained four movements showing the different stages a person goes through when dealing with a tragic event. They proudly came away with a fourth place finish. After marching season, the band members and colorguard traveled to New York City over Thanksgiving break. There, the group toured Manhattan to see several famous sites as well as to see the Rockettes and The Phantom of the Opera. Throughout the rest of the year, the musicians stayed busy with the Christmas concert, the colorguard's first performance at a basketball game, Solo and Ensemble, the spring Contest, the elementary school tour, and graduation.

Freshman Whitney Davis doesn't let the surrounding chatter keep her from focusing on her music.

Freshman Tabitha Stichter relaxes during reading period in fifth period chorus.

Some of the men in chorus have trouble staying totally enraptured by what Mr. Bradley is teaching them.

These underclassmen practice with the rest of the group in the auditorium to give Mr. Bradley a chance to hear how they sound in a different setting.

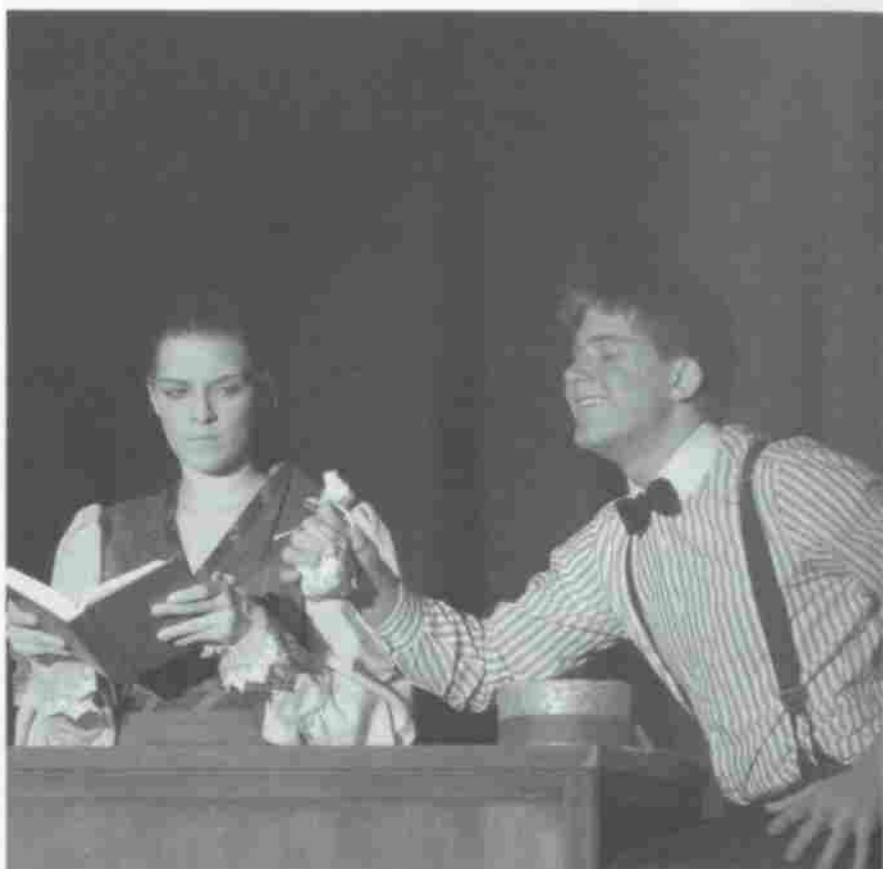

Mr. Bradley directed his 110 chorus members through another productive year. The group made its way through fall and spring variety shows as well as performing at their Christmas concert in December and their spring concert on April 30. During the beginning of second semester, over 40 singers competed in Solo and Ensemble, with several moving on to state. About 10 members of the FP chorus participated in the All-State Choir in January. The entire group spent much of the spring preparing for their contest at Evansville North High School on April 29.

River City finds new attitude due to mind games of a traveling swindler

Mayor Shinn (John-Paul Verkamp) yells at Eulalie Mackeknie Shinn (Ali Meyer) yet again about the state of their family, the school board, and his business.

Harold Hill, played by Jim Gregory, antagonizes Marian the Librarian (Kyla Fleck) as he threatens to dump "marbles" in her quiet library.

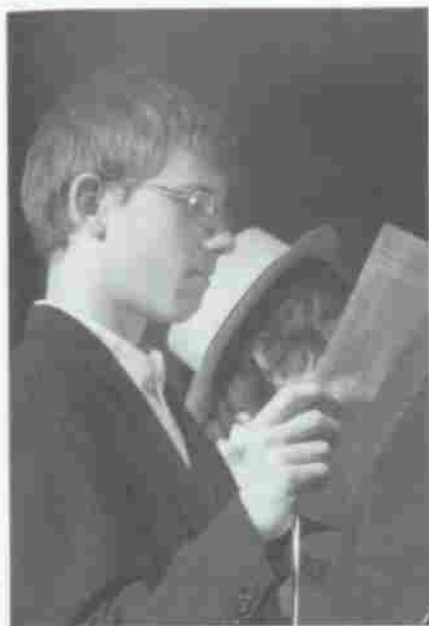

The future cast of the 2006 spring musical met for the first time in December as they tried out for various parts that would become each person's identity in The Music Man. Practices began like most years in early January. One difference, however was that director Mr. Chuck Bradley gave most cast members more time off than in previous years. After months of practices, the entire cast and crew took a week off for spring break in which they rested their voices and prepared for the week of insanity.

For the final week of practice, rehearsals started early and ended late as the show came together. Finally, at 7:00 on March 30, the curtain opened and the show began. The cast performed on March 30, 31, and April 1.

The Music Man tells the story of a traveling salesman who swindles every town he visits, thus ruining the careers and hair of all traveling salesmen who come to town after him. At this point, River City comes into the picture. River City is a town of stubborn, pompous, and tightfisted people. Professor Hill creates a stir by telling these honest people that Mayor Shinn's new pool table will create sin in young boys and convinces them that River City needs a boys' band. The only problem with his scheme is the local librarian, who can't necessarily convince people that Harold is totally evil because she isn't sure herself. In the end however, all truths become known, and no one really knows what happens.

Art: Where creativity is shown

Many FP students take part in art class, which is taught by Ms. Tammy Taylor and Mrs. Elaine Peters. "Having a great teacher always makes class more interesting," exclaimed junior Rachel Englert. "Mrs. Taylor always has us laughing when we are getting stressed about our artwork."

When your artwork is finally finished, though, it makes you feel ecstatic. Just ask senior Ashley Shepers and junior Emily Shepers. They worked on one of the largest mosaics during class this year. This artwork will decorate the walls of the high school. "It took us about a year to finish it," said Ashley. "It was a very frustrating piece of artwork to complete, though. We fired some of the pieces after glazing them and they did not turn out, but we finally fixed it."

Drawing, painting, ceramics, and other art classes make Forest Park's art department what it is. "All you need is paper and a pencil and you have art," says freshman Hannah Beck. "But being creative sure does help."

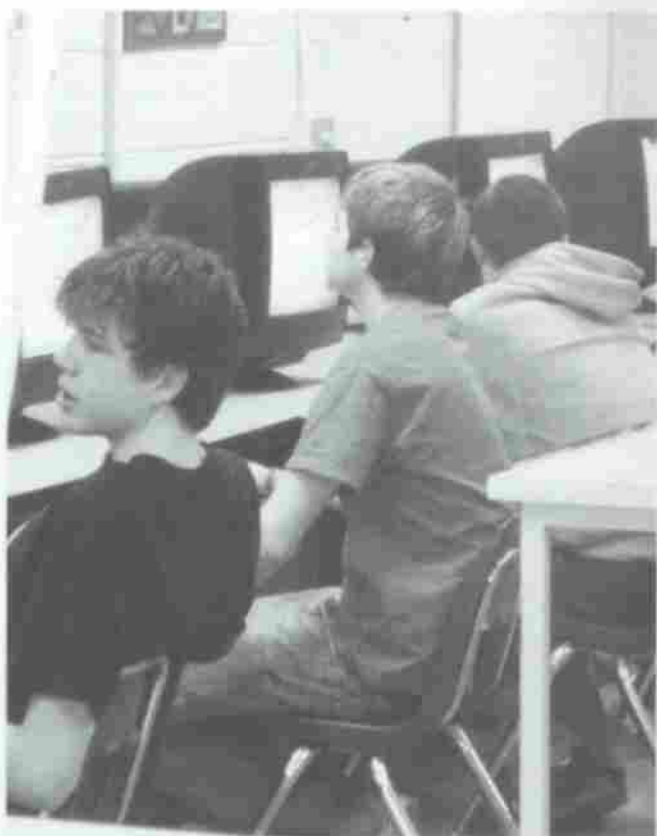

Kayla Allstott, sophomore, is sketching pictures of a cartoon girl.

Sophomores Abby Hopf and Kendra Wilmes are shading self portraits.

Industrial Tech builds

Students in engineering class spend a lot of class time working on the computers, like sophomores Evan Daunhauer and Cameron Kerstins.

Junior Jared Huff works on rebuilding an engine.

Sophomores Brandon Leonard, Chad Jacob, and Adam Fleck work together to reassemble a lawn mower engine.

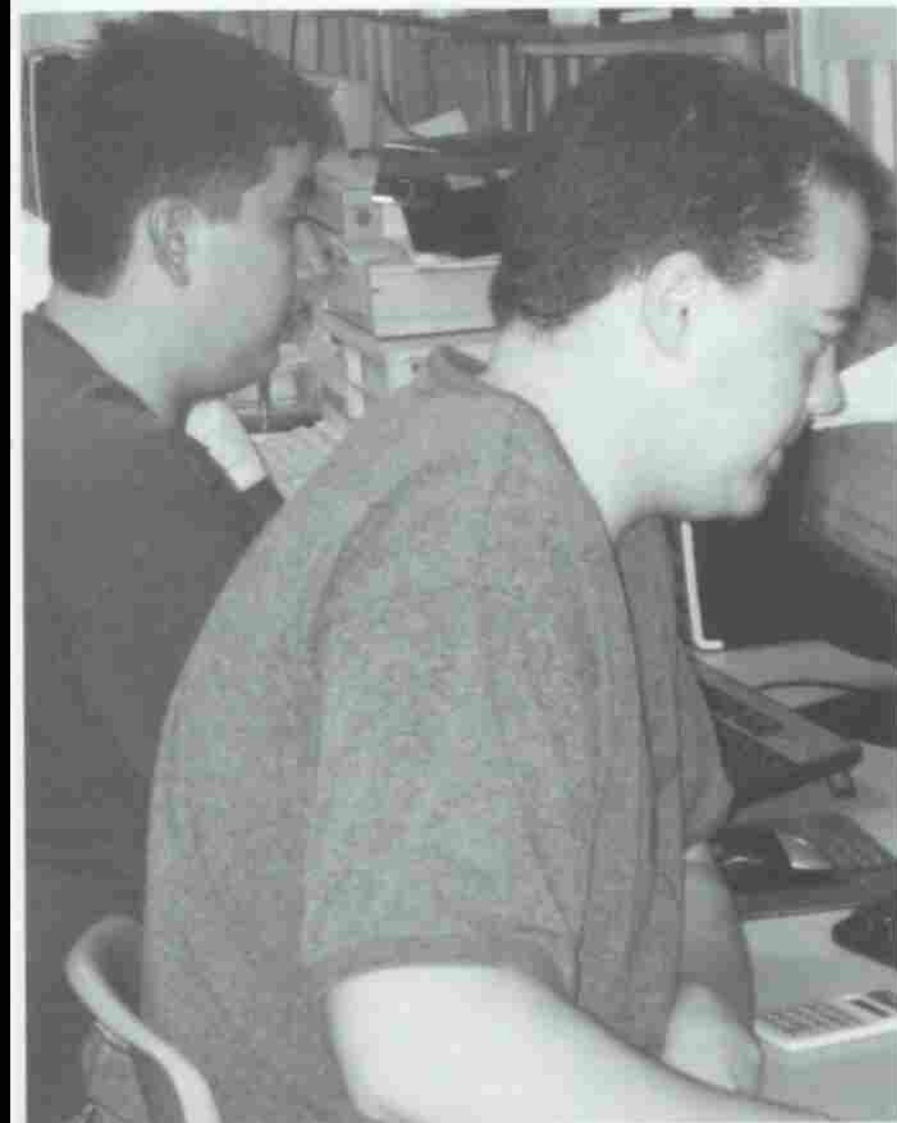

while Ag class grows

Industrial technology and agriculture offer an assortment of classes. Pre-engineering classes, metals, woods, and power are all provided in the Industrial Tech hallway.

Instead of just sitting in class and taking notes, industrial tech students learn by trial and error. "It's more hands on in tech class," said junior Spenser Fromme of power class.

Samantha Brown, junior, studies for earth and space science, taught by Mrs. Karrie Wolf.

Freshmen Felicia Critchfield and Whitney Davis check their biology answers.

Science and math classes make you think. "When you have a really hard problem [in math class] and you finally solve it," says sophomore Ashlee Niehaus, "You get a great feeling, like wow! I can actually do it!"

These classes also give you more insight to the way things work. "I enjoy understanding how the world works," said sophomore Kaitlin Gress.

Business prepares students for the future while social studies teaches the past

Social studies teaches you about the world. It teaches culture and tells stories of the past. That is exactly what the social studies teachers share with their classes each day. "Ms. Niehaus is really funny and calls us all dork heads. She makes learning US History really fun," said junior Jake Bradley.

"I like it [world geography] because we get to do fun group projects each week," said senior Brittany Smith. This year there was even a new history class, sports history. This class teaches the history and great moments in sports.

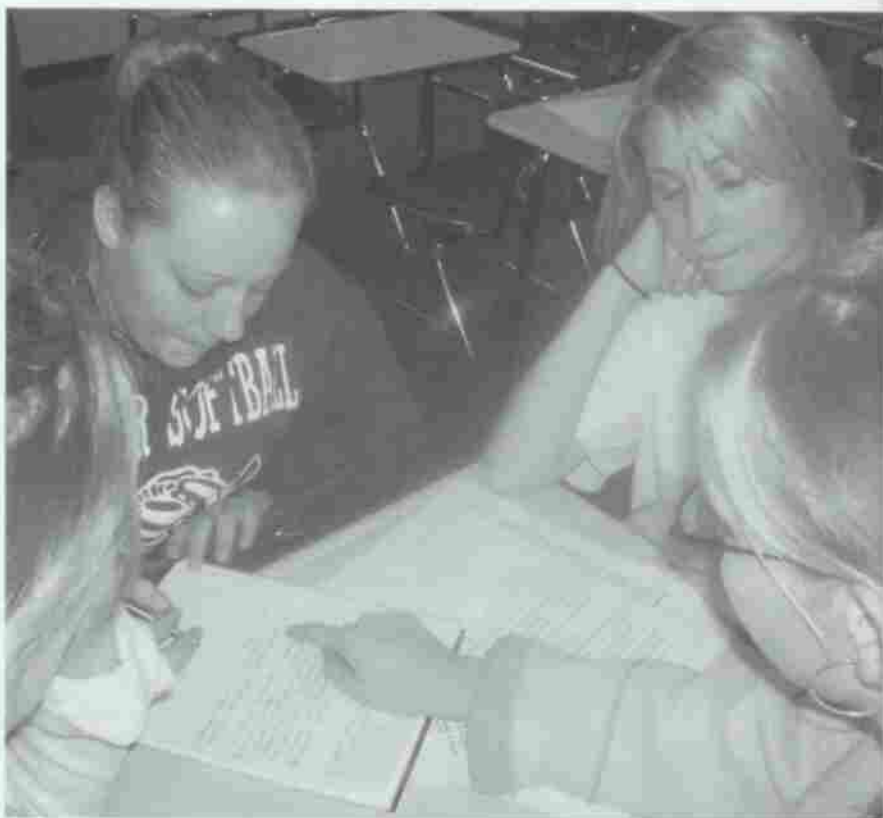

Business classes are very helpful. "I learned helpful programs that will benefit me in the future," freshman Kelsey Bohnenkamper said about computer applications.

"Mrs. Schnellenberger is a good teacher to prepare me for the future. She uses her unique ability of teaching skills to keep me interested," said junior Terri Ketzner about accounting class.

Junior Lauren Wahl takes notes in Ms. Niehaus' US History class.

Cory Kreilein, junior, asks the judge, junior Jared Huff, a question during the mock trial.

This was the first year that the Spanish IV and the German IV classes had a cultural food day together. The students met in Mrs. Emily Hauser's classroom and shared their country's food. "It's nice to try something different," said senior Lisa Demuth, Spanish IV.

"It's fun to get together with the senior German class and eat their food, while they try ours," said Spanish IV senior Erin Troesch.

Traveling is a part of foreign language classes. The summer of 2005 consisted of the Spanish trip to Mexico. The German classes are planning to visit Germany this summer of 2006.

German IV and Spanish IV seniors Eli Major and Nicole Berg eat Spanish and German food during food day.

Junior German III students, Beau Troesch and Brad Weyer, work on board translations.

These Spanish IV seniors, Abbey Fleck, Steffi Mehringer, Erin Troesch, and Lisa Demuth, are dancing the Macarena with Mrs. Hauser.

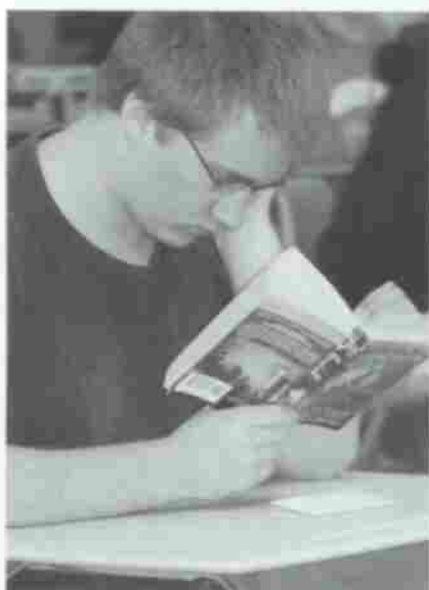

Junior Whitney Wollenmann writes her sentence in German III class.

Classes keep kids in shape

Health classes were taught by Mr. Matt Sisley again this year. He taught his classes of the importance of maintaining healthy lifestyles now and in the future. He explained the need for exercise, the effects of drugs and alcohol, and touched on the uncomfortable subject of sex education.

Mr. Matt Sisley takes health class very seriously and feels the lessons he teaches are important to know.

Junior Josh Greener hits one out of the park.

Mrs. Emily Hauser and Mr. Matt Sisley worked together to help keep the students of FP in shape. They made PE class more interesting by playing physical games such as softball, handball, basketball, volleyball, and football. Unfortunately, PE can't be all fun and games. The students also have to learn the strength training machines and which muscle group each targets. At the end of each session, students have to take a test.

Freshman Casey VanWinkle rounds the bases after hitting the ball way out in the outfield.

Freshman Tabitha Stitcher ran with all of her might on the last leg of a long run.

Home ec teaches lifelong skills

Mrs. Brenda Allen teaches a variety of classes such as housing, nutrition and wellness, advanced nutrition, foods, child development, and human development. Walking through the FP hallways, crying mechanical babies can be heard, or the scent of delicious food can be detected. These classes are not only entertaining, but they prepare the students for future careers and lifestyles.

Senior Lacy Meyer listens intently to the presentation that is being given.

Volleyball team suffers injuries and defeat

This year Forest Park's varsity volleyball team consisted of five seniors, Cassie Berg, Emily Hildenbrand, Leigha Hoffman, Erin Troesch, and Liz Steinmetz.

Although there were five seniors on the team, two of them, Liz Steinmetz and Cassie Berg, were out for the season with minor leg injuries.

According to coach Jamie Giesler, this year's team worked hard together and made many improvements. The team finished with a record of 12-20.

Senior Lisa Demuth also commented, "It was definatly different from the past years, but in the end we learned how to play well together."

The girls lost the first game in sectional against Vincennes Lincoln. Although the team did not advance out of the sectional, Steffi has high hopes for next years soccer team. "We have a lot of talent that will only continue growing as the years go on," said Steffi.

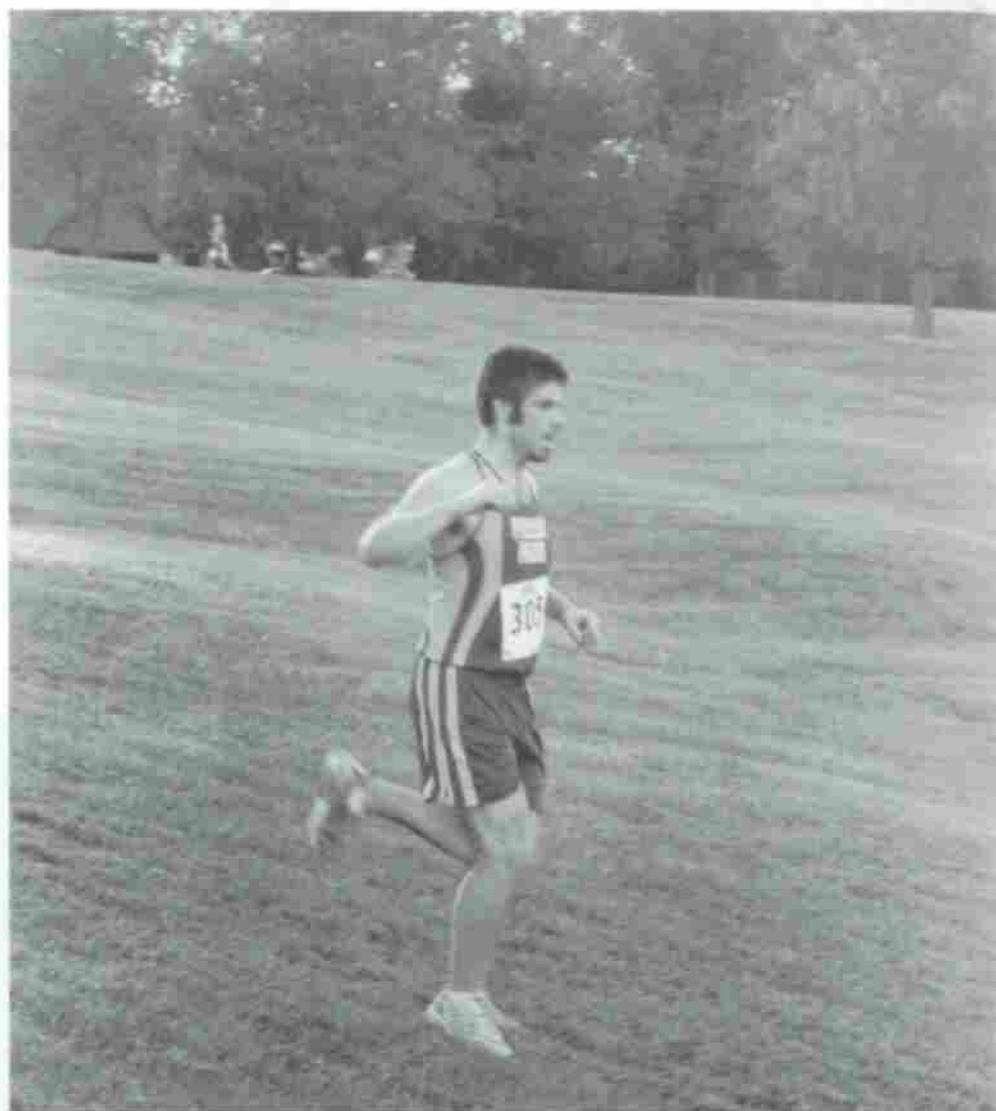

The girls concluded their season with a 6-7-4 record.

Back to back STATE CHAMPS

The 2006 boys' basketball team did the unthinkable this year by winning back to back state championships by defeating Fort Wayne Harding 61-55. The regular season was also very exciting. Because of last year's success, the team was invited to play in the Circle City Classic and Hall of Fame Classic tournaments, where they were able to compete with some of the best teams the state has to offer. They also won the Herald Tip Off Classic and Blue Chip. Senior Brandon Hopf broke FP's rebounding and total point records and was named to the Indiana All-Star team. Junior Clint Hopf was invited to play on the Indiana Junior All-Star team. Members of the boys' and girl's bowling teams pose for a picture at one of their final meets held at Dubois Lanes in Jasper.

This year was the fourth year that Forest Park has had both boys' and girls' bowling teams. The teams practiced every Thursday at Dubois Lanes in Huningburg.

Both boys' and girls' teams had very productive seasons. The girls' team made history by placing second at sectional advancing them onto Regional. Along with the girls' team advancing, three members also advanced individually, Mallory Brosmer, Stephanie Fischer and Jake Schwinghammer.

This year the girls' team will be graduating three seniors, Stephanie Fischer, Autumn Bolte, and Amber Messmer. Stephanie and Autumn have been members of the team all four years it has existed.

The boys' will also be graduating a handful of seniors. Brad Bolden, Curt Bromm, Kurt Blunk, Ryan Bogan, Eli Major, and Daniel Schnieders will all be leaving.

Swimming:

Racing through an underwater world

This year the swimming team was made up of five young ladies. Shannon Hassfurther, Amber Knust, Lauren Wahl, Hillary Cremeens, and Laura Hassfurther. They were headed by coach by Mr. Bill Schneider.

Senior Shannon Hassfurther felt satisfied with the way the team performed. "We did very well, we all improved greatly from when we started the season."

Although the team only consisted of five members they normally finished by taking second place at their meets.

The swimming team will be graduating only one senior this year which leaves high hopes for a competitive team next year.

Freshman Laura Hassfurther looks onward as she discusses the meet with fellow teammate junior Amber Knust.

Juniors Lauren Wahl and Amber Knust get each other pumped up before the next relay race.

Laura, Lauren, and Amber are mesmerized by their times.

Laura Hassfurther is excited to be part of the swim team.

The dance team also performed during girls' and boys' basketball games.

The roll down in the funk routine is always a crowd pleaser.

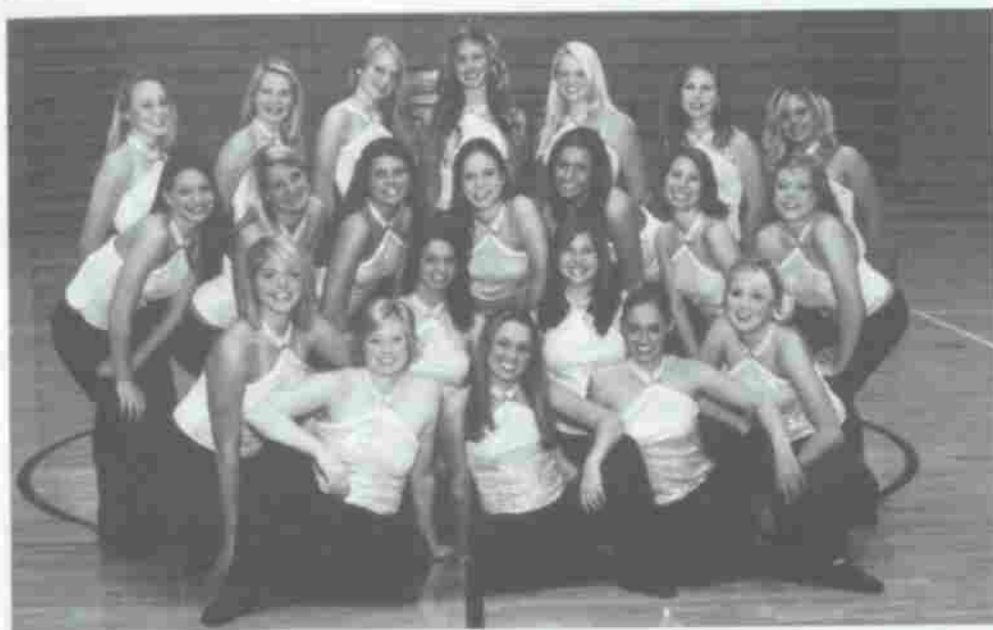

Abbey Fleck and Coach Denise Heilers share their joy.

You can't pass up a great photo op, and FP is always the last one taking pictures after state.

Dance team reigns as state champs

The 2006 Forest Park dance team captured their second state title in advanced pom. The team also placed second in hip hop and high kick. Their pom routine went undefeated all year. FP racked up many first place finishes in their competitions and won all three divisions at regional. They were also recognized as the feature dance team by the IHSDTA in their monthly newsletter. The dance team also danced at the Holiday Tourney for the first time.

The girls competed in the high kick category with their "Knock on Wood" routine.

Cheerleaders inspire the Ranger Nation

Once again the Ranger cheerleaders helped lead the boys' basketball team all the way to state. The cheerleaders have many difficult routines which require hours of intense practice.

In November the cheerleaders participated in competitions and placed first at regionals and placed ninth at state.

In January the cheerleaders hosted a kiddy camp where they taught future Rangers.

The cheerleaders are the driving force behind the Ranger pride. So when they cheer help them out and show your pride by cheering along.

Shayna Roos gets set to top a pyramid to entice the Ranger Nation to help cheer on the boys' basketball team.

Girls' tennis team has amazing season

The girls went into sectional with a great record of 11-3 but unfortunately lost to Jasper in the second game.

The Ranger Nation often overlooks these ladies. However, they have been a strong team and are an ever present show of the amazing Ranger spirit.

These ladies practice hard to hone their skills and rarely receive attention during their season. Know this: these ladies have just as much spirit as anyone and the effort they put into their game is equal to that of any other team.

Girls' tennis frequently has to battle through rainstorms and tough competition. However, they almost always come out on top as seen in their season record of 11-3.

The beginning of the season started off a bit rough but the ladies worked through it. The ladies ended their season with a record of 17-9.

Unfortunately the lady Rangers lost to Southridge in game four of sectional. The loss in sectional cut the season short for the whole team, but the team will be saying farewells to six seniors.

Dana Lindauer, Christy Harpenau, Leigha Hoffman, Cassie Berg, Erin Troesch, Emily Hildenbrand will all be graduating this season. Coach Glenn Knies stated to the Herald, "Those were a great bunch of kids and I'm going to really miss them."

Next season looks just as promising as this season. New ladies will be joining the team and bringing new skills with them.

This year the baseball team won the Blue Chip Conference championship. The team also had success in the tournaments they entered. The team won one game and lost one game in the Dubois County Tourney and they won both of the two FP Tournaments.

In sectional the Rangers were stunned by South Spencer. The Rebels had fallen twice to the Rangers in the regular season, but in sectional play the Rangers lost 8-7.

Girls' and boys' track teams cross the finish line at fourth place

What a year in track it's been. The girls' and boys' teams both finished in fourth place at sectional, with many members going on to regional. The girls' team won the Blue Chip Conference, which was held at Northeast Dubois. The boys' team came in second place at the Blue Chip Conference, which was held at home this year.

Golf team is third in BCC

The Forest Park golf team had a 26-26 record this year. They placed third in the Blue Chip conference, and they placed ninth in sectional. Junior Tyler Blessinger was MVP while junior Jason Wendholt was named the most improved player on the team. The mental attitude award was given to the only senior on the team, Cody White. Coach Bill Dittmer said, "We're only losing one senior. Next year's team should be very competitive."

PATRON: THE DAIRY BARN

UNTUCKED

Finally, we have reached the end of the year. We have made our way through tests, projects, competition, sleep deprivation, frustration, and at times, tears. However, we have also created some memories that will last a lifetime, like the evening at prom, attending band, dance, or basketball state competitions, partying with friends, and the feeling of freedom that emerged from hearing the 3:00 bell. A new understanding has emerged in the form of timeless lessons about the importance of patience, friendship, and laughter. Before we say goodbye forever, we need to take a moment and remember the year that we became UNTucked.

Untucked and proud

The senior members of the 2006 yearbook staff gathered for one final group picture at the end of the year.

This was a historic year for the FP Tracer. For the first time, we designed the entire yearbook on computers. We would like to thank everyone who helped make this yearbook possible. Thank you to Robert McCarty Photography for providing us with pictures and to all people who helped supply our endless need of pictures and information. We would also like to thank teachers for letting us leave class to take pictures and work on our pages. Finally, we want to thank our advisor Mr. Walston who helped us immensely.
