Who are we? We are the students and staff of Jasper High School. We are the future. We are unique. In this yearbook, our memories of the past year will forever be stored.

You may have noticed that this book looks different from those in the past. For a change and in an attempt to capture what really goes on during the school year, the yearbook staff decided to present a chronological yearbook. Though there are no club or academic sections, those events are covered in the weekly sections of the book. The chronological approach also fits the book's theme, What Time?, and with the concept of time driving the book, we hope to give insight into how students spend their spare time, as well as what goes on during the school day.

Many teachers outside the Art Department integrate creative projects into the curriculum. Juniors, Maria Rojas and Brenda Juarez enjoy getting creative in Mrs. Widolff's class.

Joseph Munning IV

Football games are a common weekend past time early in the school year. Juniors Hannah Seger, Brooke Farmer, Emma Kahle, Emily Mendel and Cori Eckerle get into the spirit of the game.

Senior Crystal Schwartz, not intimidated by the competition, makes a move to get the ball upfield as junior Brittney Hopf focuses on the play.

What were your thoughts on the first day of school?

"I was nervous. It was my last, first day of school." - Brittany Stork (12)

"I was lost and scared, because it was a new experience." - Virginia Petry (9)

While a lot of work goes into the yearbook class, staffers still find time to joke around and have fun. Kayla Russell (9) and Mackenzie Keller (10) take a break to dress up and waltz around the room.

A plethora of gym bags await the 3:00 bell for sports practice.

Summertime is full of excitement and fun filled days that can not be forgotten. Some students got out of Jasper and explored the world, while others found ways to party it up in good ol' Jasper, Indiana.

Young Life Camp, reeking havoc and chaos, or just hanging out with friends were some of the many activities that happened over the summer.

Enjoying a unique experience, Kalli Stylianides (10) went on a family vacation to Greece. She states that "it was the most fun" she had ever experienced.

Even though some people did not go out of the United States, traveling was involved in many summer vacations.

Alicia Hartings (11) traveled south to Tennessee. While she was there she saw a few plays in Pigeon Forge and went shopping in Gatlinburg. Although the time was spent with her parents and sister, she enjoyed the time away from the corn fields and hay bails.

Summer is a time to get out, and enjoy oneself. Friends are key and family is vital. Vacation is meant for having fun, loosening up, and preparing as much as possible for the upcoming year.

Once again, the hallways were packed and bustling with activity as the first week of many commenced for the year. Students reacquainted themselves to the routines of the school year as they mastered their schedules and met their new teachers. This was also the first chance for students to meet Ms. Rottet, who was welcomed as the latest Spanish teacher. The week itself, was launched with an excellently delivered address to the school given by Principal Roberts in the gymnasium. Principal Roberts talked about the importance of high school education as a defining time in life and urged students to take the year seriously while still enjoying it. Tryouts were held in the auditorium for talented thespians seeking to gain roles in the upcoming Fall Musical. Both veterans and newcomers to the theater program tried out for positions that involved dancing and singing. Friday ended with a bang as the Welcome Freshman Dance drew in a massive crowd (lured by glowsticks) that sought to celebrate the smooth transition between summer and school.

Band, contrary to popular belief, is not a cult. Or perhaps it is. The dedication students show for their music is tremendous, rivaling that of a crazed organization. But be assured, band is benign. Heck, it's even beneficial. Students gain so much from it: musical ability, fellowship, and a drive to strive hard for what they love. During marching season, school is all about the band. Evenings unfold with their music, the band director's yells, and miscellaneous sounds radiating miles around the school. The color guard goes through their motions, spinning while Mr. Goodhue shouts.

Why join band? Doubtless it's an activity that demands dedication, time, sweat, blood, tears. A survey revealed the truth of this trend. The reason for joining band, as explained by Logan Messmer (10), was "It makes me look awesome and I get to show off some cool skills." Another valid reason was the practical reply Thomas Lowrey (9) gave, "I don't like to sing." But by far the most popular reason for joining band (at least the most common one scribbled on the survey passed out in study hall) was a student's love of music and creative expression.

Some may see them as lowly farmers, but the FFA is much more than that and should be less overlooked. These students are the next generation of farmers, cooks, and restaurant owners: the people that will probably be feeding you in a few years. The FFA does promote agriculture, but like most clubs, it also involves leadership building. Plus, not all of the members are farmers. According to the officers, FFA is "a good way to get involved and meet new people from other schools and states." Club activities include projects, conventions, cookouts, machinery shows, and others.

SADD is a national organization formed to stop students from making destructive decisions. Hence the name, Students Against Destructive Decisions, formerly Students Against Drunk Driving. The club's main activities are Red Ribbon Week and a cupcake eating contest held in the spring intended to bring awareness to eating disorders.

Clubs are a big part of the school year. It's a way that we, as students, can hang out with friends, have fun, learn something new, or give a helping hand in the community. Many popular clubs are Key Club, French Club, Spanish Club, SADD, and National Honor Society (NHS). Most clubs allow anyone to join if they desire; except, National Honor Society can only be joined by juniors or seniors. Of course, those seniors or juniors must have certain skills or qualities. They must show service, character, scholarship, and leadership skills. The NHS members also participate in many activities, such as dealing with computers or job shadowing. And much like the popular Key Club, members must complete a specific number of service hours.

But not every club or organization does what Key Club or NHS does. Some clubs are just in existence to help broaden people's interests or are there just for fun.

So for whatever reason one decides to be a part of a club, whether it be because they want to give back to their community or to hang out with friends, one thing is for sure: there is a club for everyone at JHS.

German Exchange Student

By Amanda Collinsgru and Megan Hoffman

When the German students were here, Jasper High kept hearing the phrase, 'Wie heisst du?', which means, 'What is your name?'. This week students were saying, 'Aufwiedersehen,' which sadly means, 'Good-bye.' But the bittersweet exchange of goodbyes did not occur before the German exchange students experienced some of the delights of the American culture.

The German students attended classes with their host students, enjoyed weekend trips, experienced the joys of tennis, and created friendships with JHS students. While the German students had fun, the American seniors had to give back to the community. Ashley Conley (12) stated, "Our class trip to Brookside Village was a wonderful experience. When you talk to elderly people, you learn so much. It is like their wisdom radiates off of them." Not everyone went to nursing homes for the elderly. Many classes went around the town picking up trash, cleaning up grave sites, and enjoying themselves while doing it all. The week was significantly productive; everyone gave a little heart.

The early weeks of the school year are not always overflowing with activities, and week six was one of those weeks. However, there were a few interesting activities that took place over the course of the week.

The theater class took a field trip to WITZ, the local radio station, to try to get the word out about their upcoming play performance. The students created commercials that would air on the radio station later.

The yearbook class was also busy this week. Part of the course requires students to contact local businesses in search of those willing to buy ad space in the back of the yearbook. Though, this isn't the favorite aspect of the class for most, it is a necessary pursuit. Without the support of local businesses, this yearbook would not be the quality product that we hope it turns out to be.

Finally a small group of students organized "See you at the Pole." Students who attended gathered for a short spiritual meeting.

Spirit Week: a time of hooliganism and tomfoolery, crazy excitement and rabid cheering. Kooky costumed kids paraded the halls flamboyantly (or awkwardly). No, not Halloween, Spirit Week! Some of the days were Superhero Day and Nerd Day, as well as a couple others. Sometimes, even the teachers got in on the action! Come Friday, the student body had been boiled up to an exploding mob of excitement (well, except for those few spirit haters...) for the upcoming homecoming event. The pep session was one of JHS's best ever. What's more spirit-invoking than turtle racing, scarfing down monstrous sandwiches, or throwing objects at teachers?

School days can be humdrum, boring, dull, dreadful, disturbing even... But Spirit Week is just one of those weeks that seem to buoy up the spirits of many (even spirit-haters need something fresh to groan about) and electrically charge us. Homecoming and Spirit Week may be a tradition to most schools, but no one does it like Jasper.

Chess Club is back, meeting on Monday afternoons. Members practice their skills and mental prowess playing a game that requires planning and concentration. Chess can be a very tedious game, but it can also be exciting at the same time. Chess competitor Jake Eckert (12) tells the staff that it has taken a long time to understand and predict other people's moves and he is excited to have gotten so far with the "sport" of the game.

The Student Council held a frisbee tournament to help get people active. "All it takes is a little awareness and endurance to get people out of their houses," Tyler Furgeson (12) explains. Student Council is a club that helps the community as well as the school. The members try to enhance the student body's spirit, while often donating proceeds from events to worthy causes. Also this week, the JHS Marching Wildcats competed in the district band competition. The band members trained hard for district, and with time they began to perfect their routine. Thanks to their dedication, the Marching Cats excelled at district, earning gold and a spot at the regional competition.

How do YOU say music? The arts took center stage this week, getting some well deserved recognition. Music resonated throughout the halls, with performances by the enthusiastic French-Canadian band Mauvais Sort as well as our very own musical.

School House Rock Live 2 rocked the community for two Sundays in a row, giving three performances. All showings had decent audience turnouts, and the members of the cast were able to successfully teach all who attended multiple multiplication facts.

Mauvais Sort, hailing from Quebec (pronounced "K-beck" not -Que-beck" according to Mr. Rottet, our friendly, neighborhood French teacher) came to rock out our school with the power of French Canadian folk rock. And, after the show, they held a question and answer session with the French II - French IV classes, where they talked about the origins of their band and what it's like to live in Quebec, while rifling through our French textbooks.

While at times the artsy side of our school can seem muted, there are some weeks where the real creativity and openness to the arts shines through.

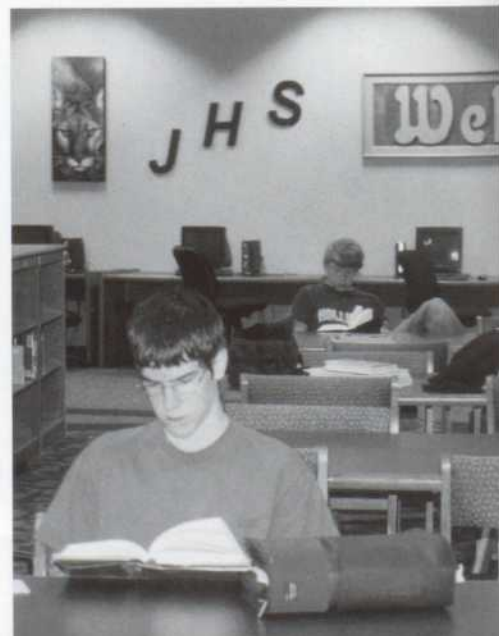

Taylor Schulte

Cute Pumpkin

Rachel Rasche (12)

By Nichole Lechner

Friends, Romans, Jasperians, lend me your ear. I come to praise the Champs, not to bury the vanquished. Week ten of the school year was one of great accomplishments and celebrations.

First, Roman Day was a magnificent display of strength and agility. The students dressed up as Roman citizens to celebrate the great civilization that ruled most of the known world at one time. The sophomores enjoy the morning, which is filled with food, games, and Mr. Price's impressive commentating abilities.

Mole Day, an annual chemistry celebration, started at 6:02, on October 23. If you went in to any chemistry class that day, you would encounter all types of mole related projects.

Pumpkins seemed to take over during the pumpkin decorating for Key Club. Big, small, fat, skinny, there wasn't any spare pumpkin that didn't get painted on. Some were so good that they deserved to have their own place in a trophy case.

The Spell Bowl team competed this week. One look at the list of words would intimidate any speller, but these students rose to the challenge.

Rounding out this busy week was the French Club's movie night. Members watched The Phantom of the Opera.

Tina Fawks

McKenzie Ellis (10) shows off her Mole Day project.

A unique skill the sophomores learn is how to properly wear a toga. Here, Ethan Kueber (10) adjusts his attire for the Roman Day festivities.

Tina Fawks

It was a day of miraculous victories and devastating defeats. Off with their Heads jousting was a favorite activity. Here, the jousting on the left is about to lose his head.

Sophomores, Mandi Mullis, Lauren Schmidt, Regan Seng, and Anna Thyen present their iMole project. In a class as challenging as chemistry, students enjoy the break that celebrating Mole Day allows.

Key Club members Taylor Guthrie (11) and Meredith Wagner (11) concentrate on decorating their pumpkins. Key Club members must earn service points throughout the year, and the club often participates in activities that benefit the entire community.

Why is Roman Day a worthwhile activity?

"Roman Day is unique because it is a cross-curricular celebration. The sophomores study the Roman civilization in World History while reading Shakespeare's Julius Caesar in English. Roman Day is meant to reward the work the students put into the units of study." -Tina Fawks (English 10 Teacher)

What comes to mind when you hear "Halloween"? Is it the holiday where dressing up as someone else and getting sweets is common? Would it be celebrating Day of the Dead in Spanish class? Could it be when the marching band left for state? No matter what is happening, the week of Halloween is always a busy time of year.

Though nothing was planned for Halloween, students who were in the festive mood dressed up as many different people, animals, and creatures.

On October 30th, Spanish 1 and 2 classes celebrated a traditional Spanish holiday, Day of the Dead, in the community room. Day of the Dead, actually held on November 1st and 2nd, is when the Spanish celebrate the lives of their loved ones by cooking the favorite foods of the deceased and decorating their graves.

After school on Halloween, the marching band practiced one last time at home before leaving for the State competition. This year, the band jumped up three spots, earning third place out of the ten schools in their class. This was the first year that the band played and marched in the new Lucas Oil Stadium.

This week was also designated Red Ribbon Week. SADD members urged the rest of the student body to live drug free lives and to make healthy decisions.

Senior band members pose for a picture before the marching band left for State.

November 3rd Historic Tuesday Election day November 7th

Mrs. Julie Ferguson

Audrey Stork (12)

Andrew Hagerdon (12)

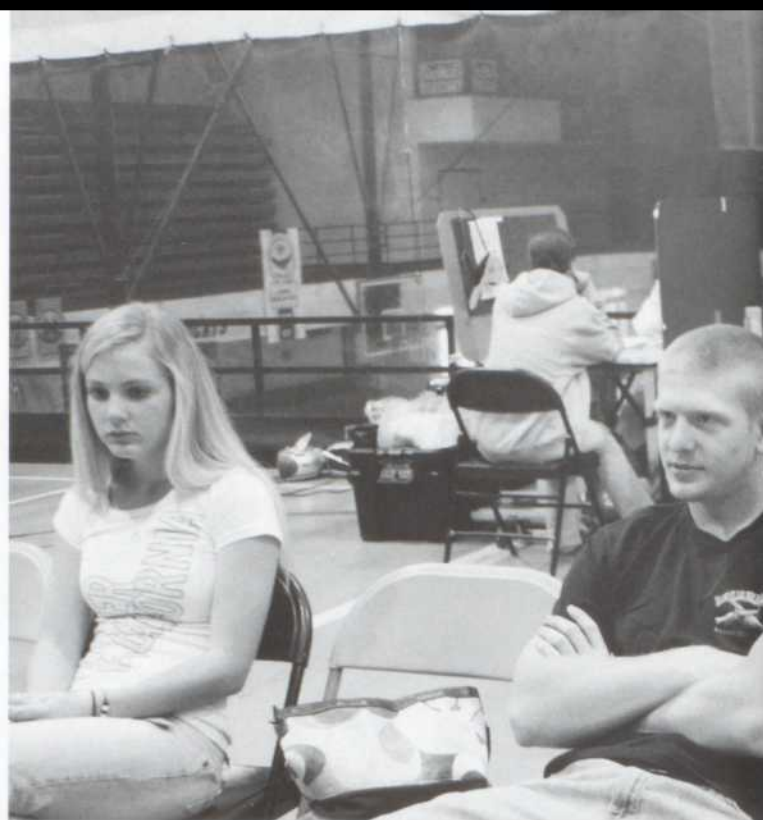

By Joseph H. Muning IV

Tuesday marked a historic day, as does every day an American president is elected into his first term. Many senior students have this particular Tuesday to remember as their first use of the powerful and coveted right to vote.

The other four school days passed bearing their own special occasions. This week students not only practiced citizenship, but they also flocked to the gymnasium to donate their blood. This worthy cause was made possible by the ingenuity of the members of the Octagon Club. Seniors also used this week as an opportunity to understand and experience the stock market in their economics class. The seniors utilized a computer program with which they invested in and monitored virtual stocks in the actual market. Economics teacher, Mrs. Julie Ferguson stated, "I show them profiles of different companies" then the students "invest $100,000 in any stock or mutual fund they want as a team."

By Friday many had received their first taste of the real world through citizenship, community, and commerce.

Veterans' Day November 10 - 14 10:30 Start

By Andrea Gregory

What is a hero? Someone who helps a lot of people; someone who helps everyone. Heroes are everywhere, whether they are defending their country, or just helping people within their community. Heroes do much for their country, like those that visited us at our Veterans' Day Program. Mr. Ron Himself spoke about what Veterans' Day means. It gave us all some insight about why Veterans' Day is a day we should honor all veterans and those people that gave their lives to save our country. Everyone should remember Veterans' Day.

In addition to the program, there was also a late start day this week. So, we asked what everyone does on late start days. Most students take advantage of the two hour delay and sleep in. However, others go out to breakfast, play video games, watch TV, or even read until it's time for school to start.

Lastly, the Key Club sponsored a food drive this week. They collected the cans for the local food bank to help those in need.

Once upon a parabola, a humble little math club had an idea. An idea of epic proportions that would one day become... The Yatzee Tournament...code name for their doomsday operation. Though their plans to summon copious amounts of energy sucked from the souls of unwitting extra credit-seeking students failed, all attendees did have a funtastic amount of fun. The community room's atmosphere buzzed with an electricity only the pure love of math (or the caffeine in the drinks provided) could create.

The Yahtzee tournament, however, did not monopolize all the students' attention this week. Spanish Club had its fair share of fun as well. They spent some time musical-viewing, dancing, shopping, and consuming that coveted exotic substance: deep dish Chicago-style pizza. While our noble Club de Espanol was off gallivanting through the wonderful land of Chicago, Performing Arts Club got their own shock of culture. The club and assorted drama and choir classes journeyed by bus to watch "Much Ado About Nothing", a play by the infamous mastermind Shakespeare.

Thanksgiving was the focus of students this week due to the fact that the Student Council served turkey, mashed potatoes, and desserts to help celebrate. We also had a short week, which was greatly appreciated by students and staff members alike.

Also this week guest speaker Sam Rhine, a college professor, spoke to all Biology honors classes. The students who attended greatly appreciated Mr. Rhine's visit. He talked about the current breakthroughs in biology, as well as what we may look forward to in the future.

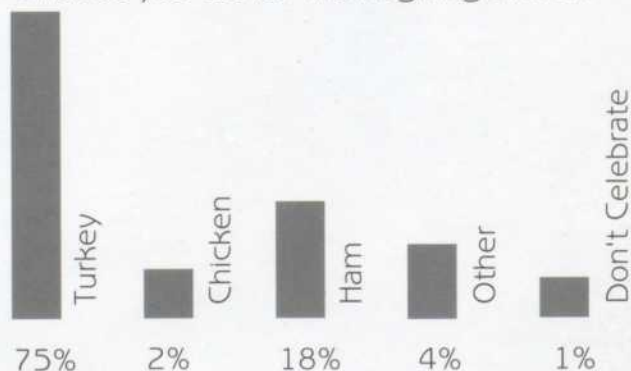

The wrestling open house took place as well. The open house allowed the wrestlers, coaches, mat girls, and their families to come together, get to know each other, and receive important information for the season.

Getting in the Spirit

Student Council members Ashlyn Weales (9) and Ashtynn Masterson (12) wrap gifts that homerooms donated for the "Adopt-a-Family" program. Student Council members hope to continue the program in the coming years, possibly adopting more than the four families they supported this season.

There is no other way to celebrate the Christmas Holiday, than getting in the spirit by doing fun activities. That's what the students of JHS did this week. Activities included wrapping gifts, making Gingerbread houses, and telling stories of the past. Chips and salsa were even sold; although, that doesn't directly relate to the holidays.

Student Council urged the entire school to get in the holiday spirit by spear heading the "Adopt-a-Family" program. Students and staff brought food, clothes, and other items, which were wrapped by Student Council members and then donated to four families in need.

German Club members spent their meeting time creating gingerbread houses. Though, not all the houses were supreme works of art, they were all quite tasty.

Sophomores in English and World History Honors performed Renaissance themed skits for their classmates. The groups' creativity kept everyone entertained.

Lastly this week, the lunch room was abuzz with Los Bravos chips and salsa for sale. Performing Arts Club members gave up time to serve the treat. The sales raised money for supplies for the club.

Tyler Cox (12) goes over the top with his performance at the auditions for Shakespeare Revue. Being remembered is key to all auditions.

One of the hardest things to prepare for in high school is the dreadful, winter final exams. The winter exam is completely dreadful due to the fact that it means that students are only half way through the school year. Seniors are thinking, "Really only half?"

Spring play auditions are regularly an intense event. Everyone who auditions strives to win a certain part. Getting the lead is not everything, but getting a part means a lot to true thespians. Dances are a traditional part of student life, and this week many students attended what JHS likes to call, MORP. What does MORP stand for? Most people say that it is just a backwards way of saying PROM but it is much more than that. This dance lets everyone be themselves; a sense of school spirit, if you will.

The band students were also very excited this week. Not for the dancing, but the music. The practice the band does for weeks really pays off in the end. The members get dressed up and perform for family, friends, and community members. The performance is another way to get into the holiday spirit.

How do you prepare for finals?

"When I was a student, I rarely crammed for any test. Start a few days ahead of the test and study a little each night."

Mr. Ross Polen

"Personally I take one class at a time. I try to not stress out over them because it is easier if I don't!"

Anjuli Buechler (12)

"Honestly, I was a procrastinator. I crammed everything at the very last moment. If there was an essay due the next day, I was doing it that night. Everyone is different with their methods."

Mr. Jarrod Land

"I try to pay attention in class so I do not have to do a lot of studying, and right before I take the test, I look over the material."

School is back in session after two weeks off, and it's time to get back into the school routine.

Mr. Jarret Helming was happy to return to JHS this week. Mr. Helming spent a year serving in Iraq as a communication supervisor. Now, he will step back into the World History classroom.

This week play practice started. This year's spring play is The Shakespeare Revue. It is a wild twist on some of William Shakespeare's finest performances. From Macbeth to Romeo and Juliet. This performance is a true comedy.

Lastly, this week the speech team entertained judges, while BPA members competed at the district competition.

Trustworthy classmates Mallory Meyer (12) and Jared Epple (11) work in the school bookstore together. When asked what they do on delayed days, they responded with trying to actually get homework done.

Sleep, sleep, sleep...everyone enjoys a few extra minutes or hours to catch up on their lack of it. Well in that case, everyone was happy this week! Due to ice and bad weather in general, most of the activities from this week were wiped off the map. There were two two-hour delays this week. But since snow was the cause of such a dilemma, the Ski and Snowboard Club members were more than happy to talk about their favorite extracurricular activity. Erika Klueh (10) is a first year member. Although this is the first club she has ever been in, she enjoys everything about snowboarding. She says, "The club is a lot of fun. I have met a lot of friends through the club, and we all have had time to really bond." Another one of the team members had a little to say about the club. Victoria Hickman (9) stated, "Skiing and snowboarding are the two things closest to flying. Although I was pressured to join the club my first year, I would never take it back."

Have you ever fallen asleep in class before?

"I have fallen asleep in History before. I haven't really done it lately (give it time)."

Alicia Hartings (11)

"I have fallen asleep in study hall before, but not often. I rarely do but everyone has those days."

Michael Conrad (11)

"I fall asleep in all my classes all the time. Senioritis is a bug that doesn't go away. It bit me about three years ago."

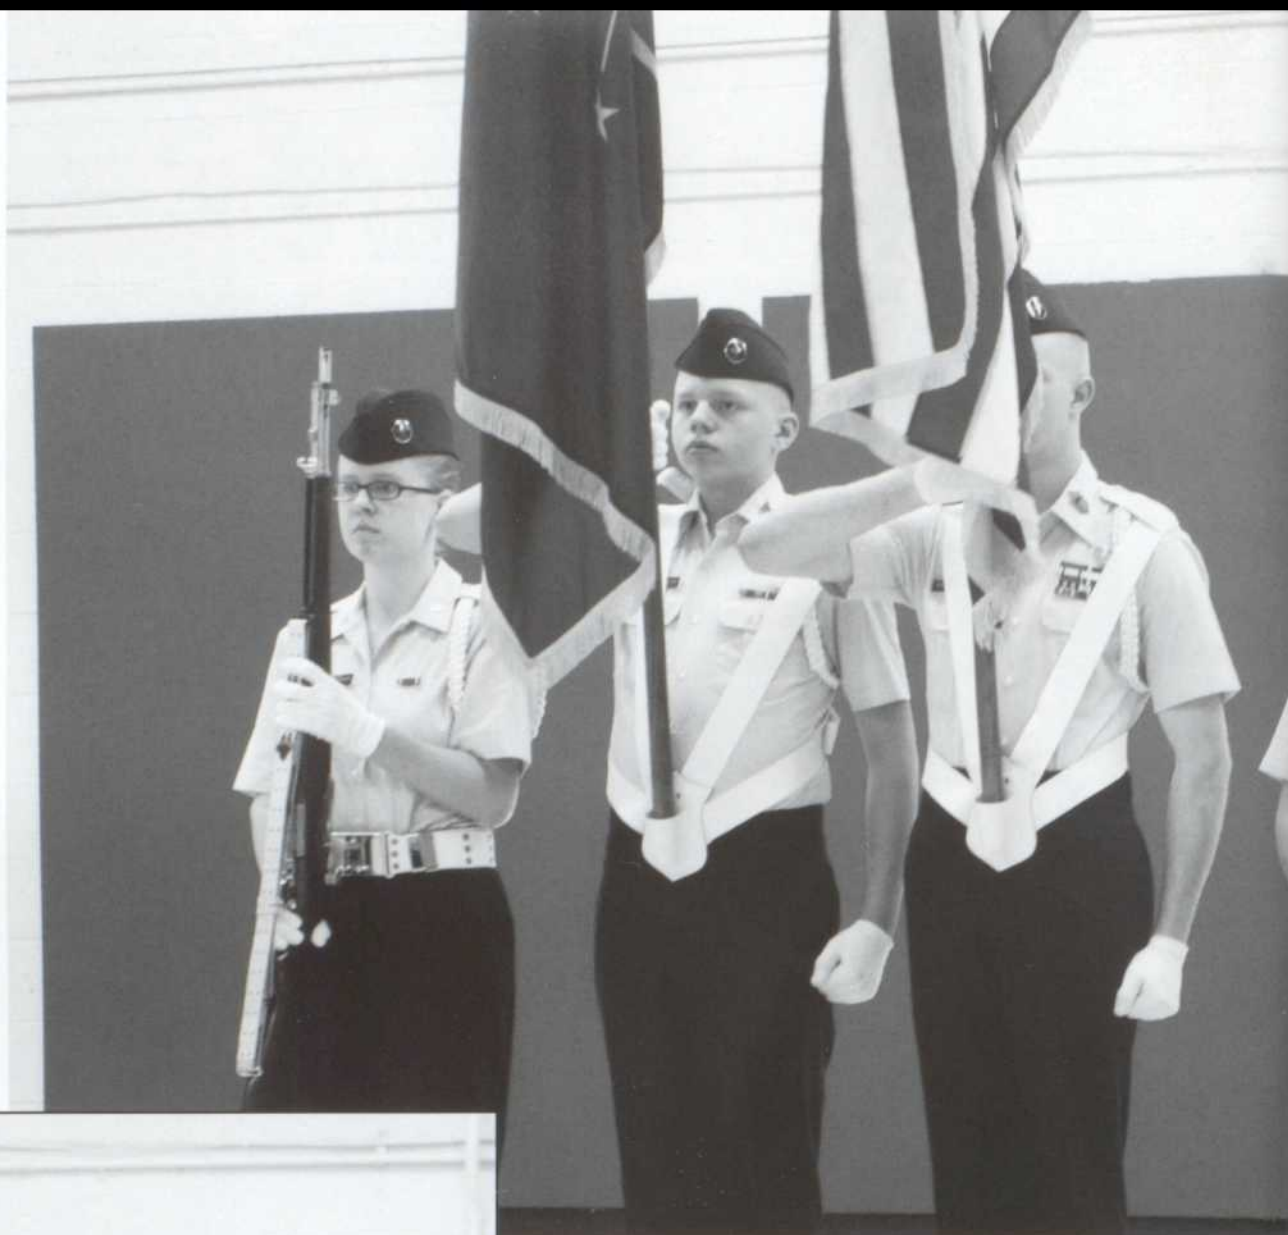

Morgan Mitchell (12)

This week was important to many of our students. Winter Guard practiced this week, as they do every week. It takes lots of time to perfect the choreography of the guard performances. The girls become confident in their abilities thanks to the long and arduous training.

Also this week there was a military conference that our Civil Air Patrol took part in. They had to show proper handling of the flag, answer questions about our country, and run several miles to show the strength the military has given them.

The psychology students hosted a speaker this week. He explained a lot of interesting points pertaining to the field of psychology. For the students, his speech was a true learning experience.

Snow Days

Snow buries numerous cars Monday during school hours. During this time heavy snowfall and chilling cold caused anxiety all day and cancellations the rest of the week. This gave everyone four days plus the weekend to enjoy the snow and time off of school.

This week began and ended with Monday, allowing students and teachers to enjoy a whole six days off during the bleak January weather. Our bowling teams competed in sectional for the fourth year in a row. Jasper natives and basketball fans had this week to celebrate, as the surviving members of the 1949 Jasper team reunited to remember their 62-61 State victory over Madison High School. The underdog Jasper team came into the state final with an 11 - 9 record and still overcame the highly favored teams Bedford, Bloomington, and Auburn to take the title. The Dubois County Daily Herald reported the number of fans with its March 21st, 1949 headline, "More Than 15,000 People Jammed Jasper To Welcome Home The Conquering State Champs." Although this week provided little opportunity for school, it was just enough to provide the town with a look back into the past and some inspiration for the future.

What were your thoughts about bowling at sectional?

"I was pretty anxious and ready to bowl. The adrenaline was definitely going."

Abby Meadows (11)

The glorious and glamorous Homecoming King and Queen, Andy Binkley (12) and Brandalyn Nordhoff (12), face the photographers at Homecoming. When asked about the evening, Brandalyn stated, "Getting crowned was the best."

School Spirit was shown this week by the multitude of students at Friday's basketball Homecoming. Andy Binkley and Brandalyn Nordhoff were elected King and Queen by the student population. Thus, the entire homecoming court and its elected monarchy appeared before those attending the game. When asked about the ordeal of preparing for Homecoming, Megan Lechner (11) said, "It was stressful at first to find a dress and everything." Lacey Berger (9) claimed, "The shopping was fun." Many on the court were also impressed with their partners. Joe Tucker (10) said Beth Patton (10) was, "...nice and fun to talk to." Lacey Berger (9) said Brandon Siddons (9) was, "Awesome. He's nice and he's funny." Andy Binkley's (12) only comment about Brandalyn Nordhoff was, "She was really hot."

What did you think of Homecoming?

Kelsey Nelson (10) was filled with mixed feelings after receiving a gift to remember, a giant teddy bear, from Andrew Hagerdon (12). Not only did it show her how he felt, but it also entertained students in first period English with Mrs. Fawks.

Love is in the air, as well as burning competition. This is a week of many different events. From over sized teddy bears to a Loch Ness Monster Club (The Nessie Club). This week's pep session was indeed a freaky one. After all It was inspired by Fear Factor. Some of the activities included an egg yoke relay, digging through amounts of odd foods, and spitting crickets! Sure enough, most were entertained, though some were disgusted, by the games.

If you believe there's a monster hiding in the depths of Loch Ness, then the Nessie Club is right for you! Founders of the club are juniors Emma Kahle and Lauren Lilly. The club offered discussion over the entity deep within the Loch.

Like every Valentine's Day, this week was filled with love and of course, gifts. The school's attendance office was overflowing with balloons, candy baskets and stuffed animals.

Any Comments?

"We must have a lot of school spirit to perform the cricket spitting game twice, 'cause I would never put a cricket in my mouth."

Laura Van Doren (11) and Abby Ebenkamp (12) show the rest of the dance team how to perform the next move. Hailey Wilson (11) and Brooke Farmer (11) also help lead the team. Practices were always a good workout for these girls.

Children are the most influential creatures on the face of the Earth. Children tend to take what they see and hear, and fit it in their lives somewhere. So the real question is, "Is their future bright?" Third graders from all of the surrounding elementary schools came to the high school to see how their future will be and how the current students are doing everything they can to see that their own future is bright. "The way to be is Drug-Free!" stated Mark Miller (12) while speaking to his third grade student. Our students showed the elementary students around the building, so that they could get a better feel for what the high school is like.

While the young people were dancing with their fate, the dance team was shaking their butts at practice. The sweat was dripping from all of the girls' faces while they perfected their routine. "All you need is a lot of energy and a good muscle memory to be on the dance squad," says Emma Kahle (11) as she took a break for water. Emma is one of the many committed dancers our school has. Like any activity, dancing takes passion and heart. or as Emma says, "If you want it, you have to take it!"

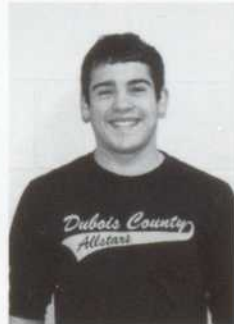

While passion is needed in many sports, it is also needed in art. The Annual Taster's Party is an art show where all of the students in art classes get to show off their work. To some people art does not come easy, but to these students, art is all they can think about sometimes. That's dedication!

Why did you want to be an All Star?

SADD shoves
cupcakes down
our throats

Sarah Barry (9) raises her face to her cardboard tower window. The Shakespeare Revue was a mixture of storylines, created from numerous Shakespeare originals.

If we were made of cupcakes, would we eat people? Only cupcakes know for certain. This week the school hosted a Cupcake Eating Contest, flooding the cafeteria with crowds of the crumbly cakes.

SADDly, we were not able to question the cupcakes before SADD had them in its SADDening clutch (no pun intended). The poor cupcakes, who had come in peace wound up in pieces - in the stomachs of the contestants for this year's Eating Disorder Awareness Cupcake Eating Contest.

This week, however, was not without its drama. The Performing Arts Club put on The Shakespeare Revue, a snarky tribute to the late great William Shakespeare, who was not a dragon, but a man. Shakespeare is a much celebrated figure in our community. If you were to fast forward a couple weeks in the future, you would find that PAC resurrected their Shakespeare act for the annual Shake's Fest.

what the people said...

Q: Would you consider the cupcake eating contest a success?

A: Yes. The whole cafeteria pays attention and seems to be interested in which class wins - the seniors of course!

Olivia Brush (12)

Q: What emotions were running through your brain as you won the cupcake eating contest?

A: I felt very confident! I'm the fastest eater in my family, so I did not doubt myself.

Jake Eckert (12)

Q: What was your opinion on the Shakespeare Revue?

A: The costumes were really pretty cool. It was fun!

are YOU on the Band Wagon?

Josh Young (10)

Starting the week off, the French class and Mr. Devin Rottet prepared and ate delicious rice and red bean bowls. Any time food is involved in a classroom activity, students seem to get excited.

This experience was one of the many goings-on this week. The main event was the Jazz Band, which performed a memorable show. Trying to get a high ranking, the band ended up with a respectable second place.

The Jazz band was not the only to perform this week, but the entire JHS marching band performed in a way by gathering and loading truckloads of fruit from the loading dock. Instead of performing in front of hundreds of people, they performed good work ethic and salesman skills in dealing with anyone interested in purchasing fruit. For some people, selling things comes naturally, but for others it is quite a challenge. With student support and family and friends to help along the way, most of the band students sold the amount of fruit that was needed to meet their goals.

"It feels great to win the food drive. I know that our donations helped someone, and that is all that matters."

Saxxon Winkel (9)

Ms. Stradtner's students smile after their victory over Mrs. Stenftenagel's class in the food drive. Classes were motivated by the incentive of wings and blizzards, as well as by the willingness to do something good for those in need.

Tina Fawks

The Jazz Band performed this week, hoping to pull off a good rank. Good ranking or not, this performance was pure brilliance.

Josh Goller (9) carries a load of grapefruit filled boxes. Along with his fellow band members, Josh helped organize and get the fruit ready for delivery. Fruit sales are an important part of fund raising for band members.

Drew Kluemper (12) and Chet Strange (12) made a calculus class held on the front steps into a rather amusing outdoor activity. The class enjoyed getting out of the building for part of a spring day that would normally be spent in a windowless classroom.

German Simon Says!

Softball players participate in 5K

This week started with German chocolate, but ended with BPA state, a softball 5K, and ... Pi Day! As always, the Math Club spearheaded the selling of the deliciously amazing decadence that is pie on Pi Day. However this year, since 3-14 fell on a Saturday, the school was sadly forced to celebrate one day early. Pi Day is one of the few days of the year that brings together those with differing views about the number. How? Because it is an excuse to eat dessert and only dessert for a meal, as some students opted to do. Also, the German chocolate-tasting meeting earlier in the week was quite a success. The students who attended were able to sample German chocolate and get a taste of some fine, (and sometimes expensive in the United States) European confections. The weekend was a busy one, with the softball sponsored 5K run/walk, the BPA State Convention, and Speech State. An impressive six out of nine entries at sectional made it to State, and Tyler Cox (12) qualified for the National Speech competition with his humorous interpretation from the book Sideways Stories from Wayside School.

"[At the BPA State Convention] during the second general session (where everyone goes to a ballroom), they had a hypnotist. He hypnotized about 20 people. They had no idea that they hit themselves with their shoes or that some of them played fake instruments on stage. The two guys that sang Taylor Swift and Britney Spears were hysterical."

John Fierst (10)

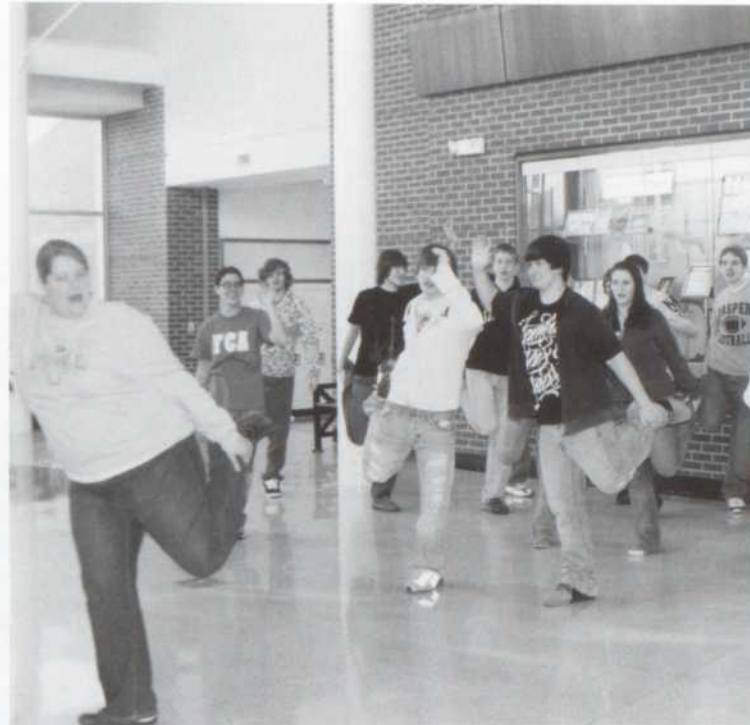

A member of the track and cross country teams, Jacob Seger (10) took advantage of the nice weather and ran in the softball sponsored 5K run on Saturday morning. The course began and ended at the high school.

Tina Fawks

Math Club member Kalyssa Eversman (12), puts the finishing touch on a sign advertising pie for sale. The group celebrated Pi Day a day early since March 14th was on a Saturday this year.

Shakespearean Festival... something to look forward to? Or something the British Literature students dread? It does not really matter what the students performing thought because the audience had a blast the entire time! Two weeks before the performance, Mr. Polen's and Mr. Price's senior British Literature classes rattled their brains to memorize a script that they wrote, practiced until perfect, and then performed in front of the school and many family members. There were some serious acts and a lot of hilarious acts. The Festival was the best way to kick off Spring Break '09!

While the seniors were doing what they do best (monkeying around), the winter guard members were enjoying the spring time at their competition. The flags were flying high, and the rifles were flipping through the air gracefully at this competition. "Winter guard isn't just an activity, it is a passion. You have to want it more than anything in your life to get the place that you came to get; first," stated Andrea Frick (10). After her freshman year in color guard, she joined the rifle team in winter guard the following season. These girls are unstoppable when it comes to their passion. Passion is the element of success.

"My group was during second period of the Shakespeare Festival. I tried not to worry beforehand for the fact that I had experience with an audience. Though others in my group were creatively challenged, we had fun."

Tyler Cox (12)

Lexi Ransom (10) and Andrea Frick (10) discussed their winter guard performance when their friends caught up to congratulate them on the job well done.

Tara Beck

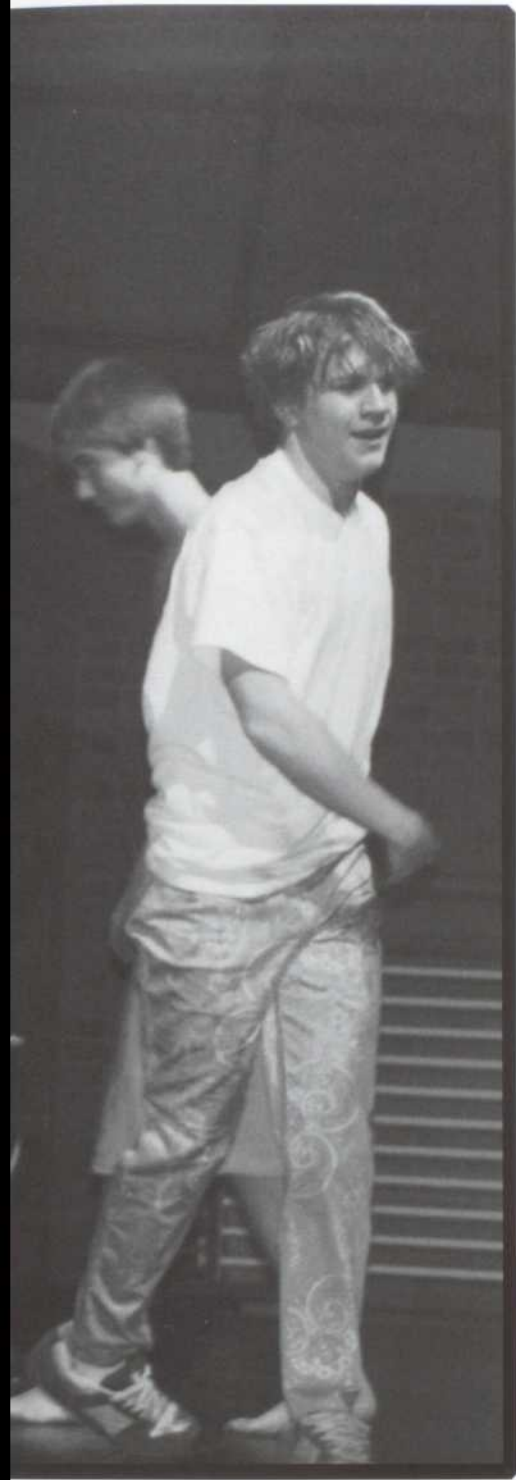

You can ask anyone in the audience, this group was unforgettable. Seniors Chet Strange, Travis Humbert, Nick Johnson, Joe Luegers, and Forrest Young did a rock band rendition on Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet". Although most might have been caught off guard by the performance, everyone had fun.

Forrest Young (12) played the tragic heroine Juliet during forth period of the Shakespearean Festival. Although he has great legs in that dress, most of the audience surely agreed they didn't want to see the sight again.

"My Shakespeare group performed during first period and we were the first to perform, so all of the pressure was on us. I may have sucked the life out of my part the day before the performance, but it came out pretty okay I guess. My group rocked my socks. :)"

DO YOU Feel the Heat?

By Dillon Ameling

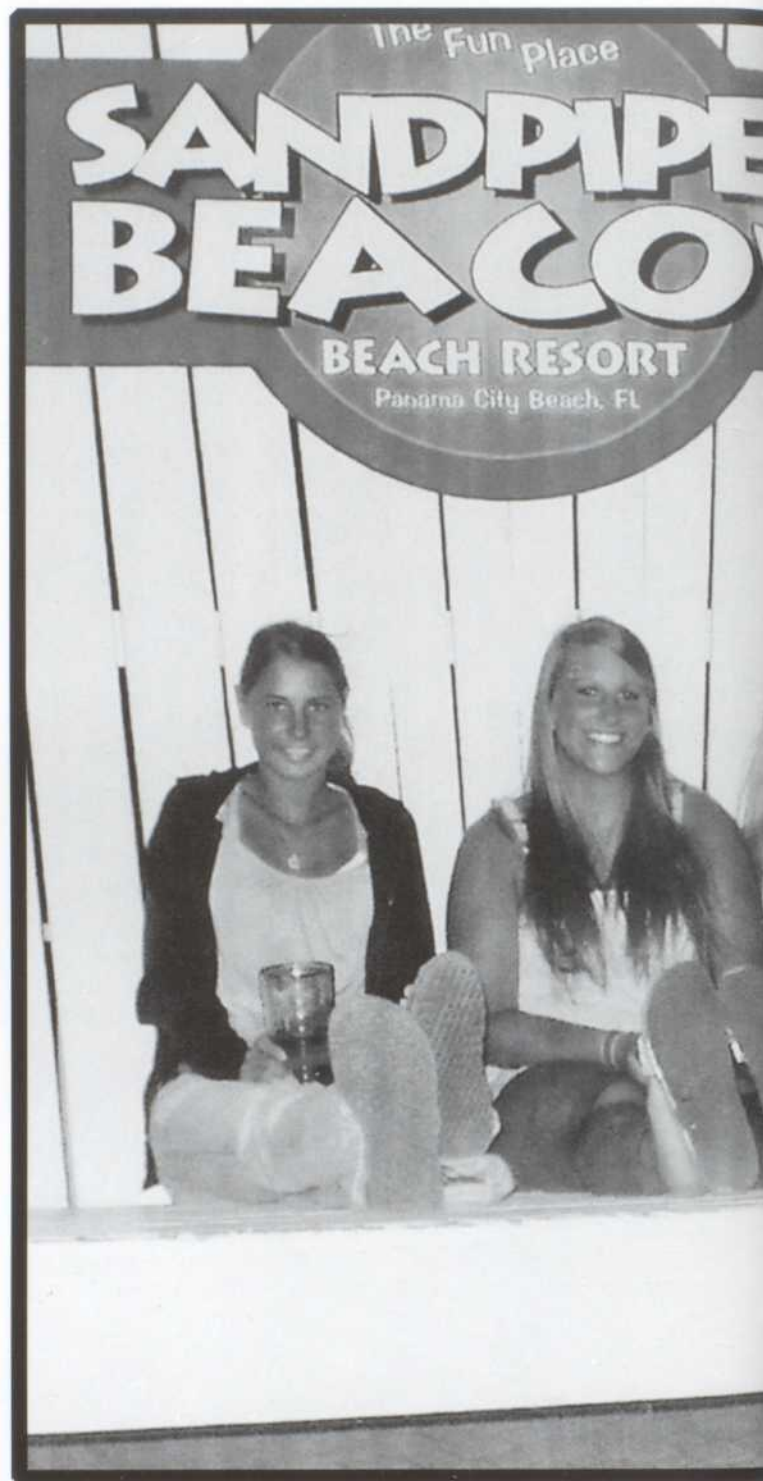

Maria Krempp (10)

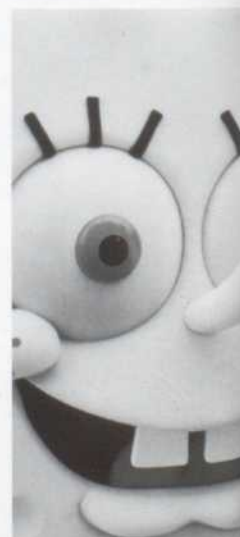

It's finally here. Everyone is looking at the clocks: watching, waiting, desiring the week long break that signifies that summer is almost here. The bell rings; a mass of somewhat organized chaos is released into the halls as teens everywhere flood out of schools across the nation. Spring Break! The question for weeks has been, "What are you doing for spring break?" A significant amount of responses were, "I'm working." For a lucky few individuals, Spring Break included trips to Florida, escaping from the parents, skiing, snow boarding, road trips, and many other exciting things to do. "I went to Panama Beach in Florida and enjoyed my time away," stated Megan Jones (12). We all know you can only stay away for so long before you start missing this place, so a week later the teens came rolling back into town and dragged back school.

"I mainly liked the slopes. The snow was perfect for boarding. It was a blast."

Maria Krempp (10)

Charlotte Olson (10) and her younger sister stand next to Nickelodeon's hit character Sponge Bob at Universal Studios in Hollywood over Spring Break.

Robin Hopf, Jessica Schaeffer, Jessy Schue, and Noah Balsmeyer (all seniors) enjoy a relaxing evening on the beach. The seniors, and a number of classmates, spent Spring Break in Panama City Beach, Florida.

Ted Krempp (9) and Brandon Hopf (9) enjoy being goofy and trying on some different hats. This group opted for snow rather than sun to fill their time during the break.

Charlotte Olson (10) stands next to Frankenstein at Universal Studios in Hollywood over Spring Break. Charlotte was quite the jet setter; her family also traveled to Canada this year.

The week after Spring Break everyone is relieved, tan, and ready for the next upcoming break. The school year is coming to a close and nothing can stop that (except a meteorite smashing Earth into tiny little molecules of course). Senioritis has kicked into overdrive for almost everyone. There are a few individuals, however, who have not given up yet. Some of those people are the ones who qualified for the National Honor Society. National Honor Society is a challenging club to qualify for. Not only does membership require a certain GPA, but potential inductees are also scored by teachers in the areas of leadership and character. This week those NHS members did some spring cleaning, collecting trash, sweeping floors, and dusting around the school. Any dirt NHS missed, Student Council members took care of during their weekend service day. Does French class ever stop eating? There is a possible explanation for the hunger pains that the classmates get during Mr. Rottet's class; all he ever talks about is food. He promises one food day every year and this week, he gave in. Students enjoyed making foods such as French toast. The band had their annual Spring Concert this week. The turn out was great and the performance was entertaining.

"I thought the Spring Break just was not long enough at all. My general feeling is what most people would consider Senioritis. I'm just ready for the year to be done."

Brandi Guth (11)

Patrick Uebelhor (11), Caleb Chambers (10), Carson Kaiser (10), and Mr. Rottet all put their cooking skills together to finish their French toast.

With the school year nearly at its conclusion, preparations for the next began. The student council officer elections were held for the underclassmen. Next year's Sophomore President, Kristen Ackerman (9) said, "I've never been on the student council, but I just wanted to challenge myself: to have a say with what is going on in this school, to be part of everything." Her advice to the new members of the council was, "Perseverance pays off. Whatever you can be a part of, you should be a part of. Just put yourself out there and listen to people's concerns." When reflecting on the election and her opponent, Sarah Barry (9), Kristen stated, "I thought her speech was really good and that mine was not up to par. She knows what she is doing."

The special education department hosted Easter Egg coloring for the students, and vocational students returned from the State Competition, having won or performed in the top five in many events at team and individual competitions in a wide range of disciplines, such as welding, carpentry, and automotive mechanics. Senior Jared Pfaff placed 1st in Skills USA Carpentry; Nick Vogler was on the first place team for the Auto Skills competition. Nick will compete in the National Competition over the summer in Detroit. Finally, Adam Buschkoetter placed 5th in the State Welding Competition. These impressive state finishes show how valuable the vocational classes are!

"I am glad that my class trusts me to hold this office... It is a leadership thing, and your class definitely needs a leader."

Rachel Mehringer (11)

Sarah Barry (9) gives the freshmen a stunning and positive speech on her views as the current class president, while Kristen Ackerman (9) concentrates intently on what she'll say next. Did YOU dance on Broadway?

For most juniors and seniors prom is a pretty big deal. From the dress to the tux, or the limo to the back of mom's mini van, almost everyone takes the time to get everything ordered and ready in advance.

Did you dance on Broadway? This year's theme for prom was Twilight in Central Park. The juniors did a wonderful job putting Prom together, and it really paid off in the end. Whether you went as a couple or with friends, Prom was automatically a dream come true. Every year after Prom there is Post Prom. Post Prom is just like an after party after a football game but instead it's after Prom. The students get to play games, like volleyball or card games. This year Post Promers also got to cream the teachers. It is actually pretty funny how bad students want to throw a pie in teachers' faces, even if that teacher is a favorite.

If the seniors had one last thing to say to our juniors, hopefully it would be thank you for such a wonderful Prom.

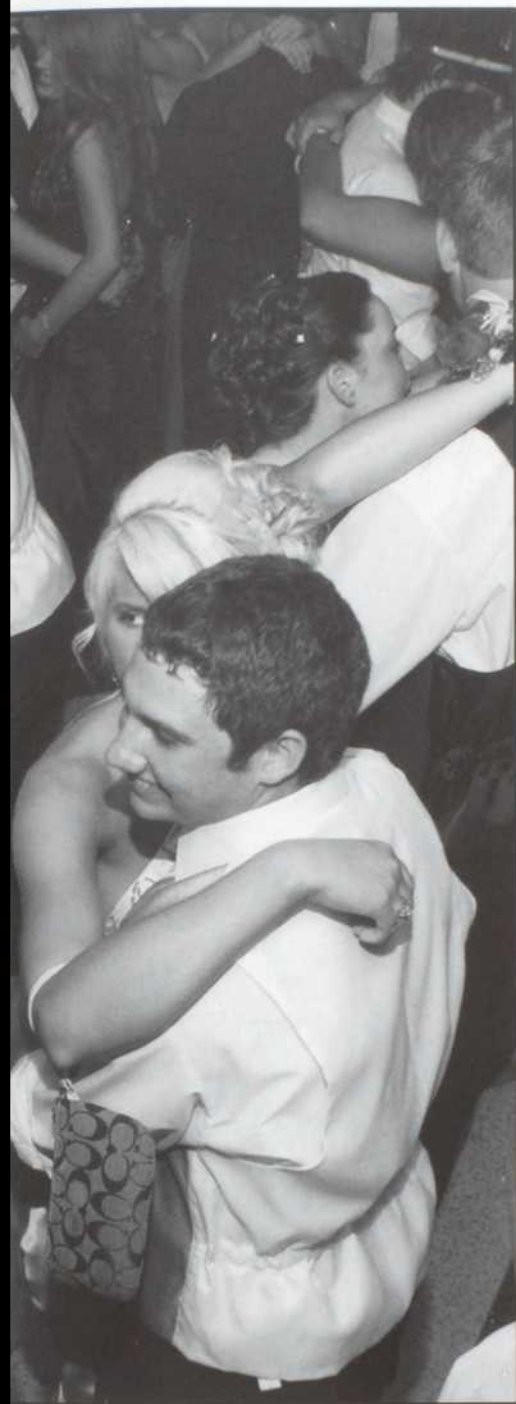

Robert McCarty

"My favorite part of prom was dancing with different groups that I normally don't hang out with."

Alyssa Seitz (11)

Liesl Eck (10), Brian Sonderman (11), and Allison Kern (10) enjoyed the remainder of their perfect night playing cards and chatting with their friends. Card games, like black jack, have become Post Prom staples.

Couples slow dance at Prom. Those who come to Prom are usually amazed by how unrecognizable the school building becomes after Prom sponsor, Mrs. Brooke Keusch, and the juniors work their decorating magic.

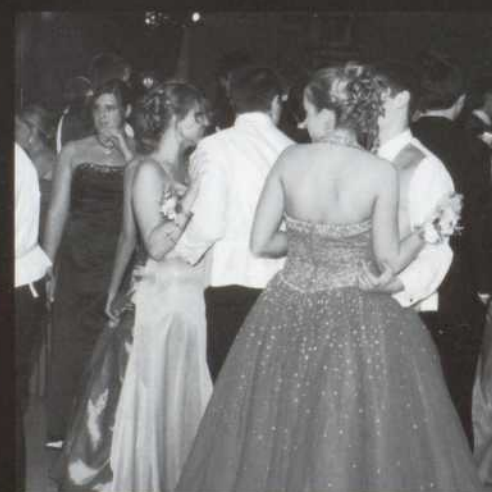

With one hard flick of the wrist, Mr. Rottet gets creamed. Brave teachers who aren't afraid of getting dirty take shifts at Post Prom, allowing students to make the day dream of throwing a pie in a teacher's face a reality.

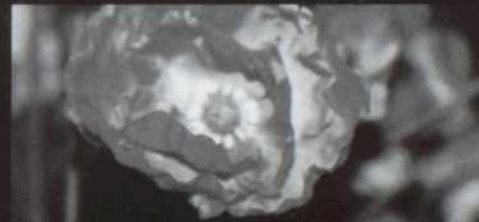

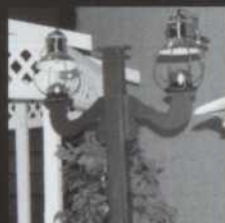

Jasper High School's 2009 King Travis Humbert, Queen Allison Matsel, Princess Shawna Eckerle, and Prince Michael Conrad pose for a photo. The royalty is chosen by the students attending Prom.

Each time Spring starts to come out of it's cage of seasons, the parents plan a date to give back to the school a little by cooking lunch for everyone. The hamburgers were sizzling on the grill when everyone walked outside for the PTO cookout. Friends got to hang out, and the teachers enjoyed getting out of their windowless classrooms. Even Mr. Stenftenagel enjoyed the extended lunch period.

Twice a year the Red Cross comes to our school to take the blood from volunteers of all shapes and sizes. Although some may get sick at the thought of blood, others step up for the opportunity to save someone else's life. The strong stood tall, and the weak fell right to the floor. Some people can take the heat, but the others need to stay away from the needle.

Awards Day was another event that took place this week. Some people sat anxiously in their seats, waiting for their names to be called, while others squirmed in their seats because their bums were getting numb. Being recognized in front of the whole school is a great feeling and an accomplishment, no doubt. As for the underclassmen who were not recognized, there is always next year! Pep Sessions are always a joy when the theme has to do with nerf balls.

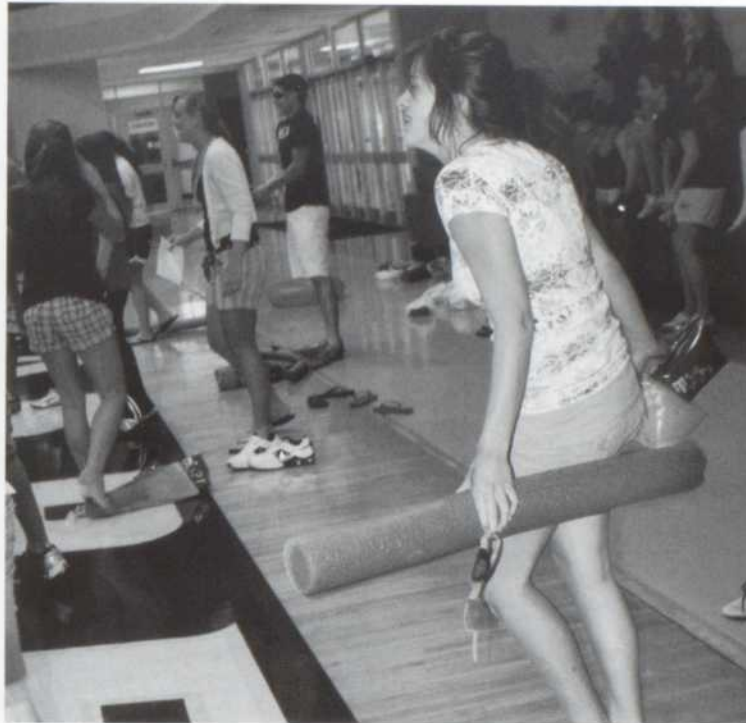

But these nerf balls are not used like usual. This game has nothing to do with football; it was dodge ball time! Teachers and students battled out their differences with the soft, foam-like balls, throwing them as hard as they could at each others' bodies. While some people were knocked down by the power behind the ball, others stood proud and ready to take down the next opponent. While the teachers might say that they had the upper hand, the students always win.

Kyle Robbins

Seniors Logan Kern, Ashtynn Masterson, Ethan Hopf and Junior Tyler Jenkins are on their toes, ready for the game of dodgeball to begin. Students are always excited when they can throw things at their teacher and not get in trouble.

The sixth annual Chalk Walk was a success. Many high schoolers worked the art stations. Others chalked the walk. Some of them even helped with tear down. Some honorable mentions include Glo Dittelberger and Cassie Schwenk. Another thing that happened this week was the awards banquet for PAC, commonly referred to as the Oscars. Some of the members performed skits, and all who attended were kept entertained. That is generally the point of Performing Arts, and this year's group didn't disappoint. The Young Life had its final meeting this week. It was filled with discussions and pie throwing. Few others got into the festivities as much as Matt May, who tossed a pie into the helpless guy that they tricked into being the target. The Academic Banquet was also this week. It was to honor outstanding seniors and their accomplishments. These seniors were also able to thank teachers who have had a positive impact on their lives.

"I enjoyed Chalk Walk because of the little kids' energy. It was fun to dance with them."

Summer is almost here, but school is still in session. Students are counting down the days to when finals will be over. They look forward to graduation parties and hanging out with friends. Even with the school days limited, numerous activities are wrapping up and lessons plans are ending. School is a hectic time, especially at the end of the year.

Mrs. Stradtner's English 9 classes are ending this year by doing projects on the the Odyssey. Her students created chariots, food, and other creative items used back in Greece. One of the more creative ideas was a trebuchet. A trebuchet is a catapult, and was demonstrated during one of her classes. Honors Day was also this week. Seniors received scholarships from hundreds to thousands of dollars. The valedictorians and the retiring staff of this year were announced and were given a last round of applause. The valedictorians were Anjuli Buechler and Greta Hurlbut, and the salutatorian was Brandalyn Nordhoff.

"I heard this noise coming from the hall and thought a fight was starting. When I got to the foyer, I was surprised to see Mrs. Stradtner's students dueling. I guess there was a fight in a sense. It was pretty entertaining."

-Mrs. Tina Fawks

Caleb Begle (9) and Steven Gerber (9) duelled each other for Mrs. Stradtner as their project for the Greek Mythology unit. The sound of the battle brought some teachers out of the classrooms to discover what was causing the ruckus in the foyer.

Certainly one of the most emotional moments of the Honors Program, senior Erika Mehringer presents classmate Brad Schmitt with the first annual Luke "Spoon" Mehringer Memorial Scholarship. Luke, Erika's brother, passed away suddenly during this school year.

Greta Hurlbut (12) and Anjuli Buechler (12) faced their classmates after being announced as the 2009 valedictorians.

FWD: FWD: FWD: Wear a bandanna on your wrist Thursday in honor of ZP. Please forward to all of his friends.

"Zachary Ryan Patton, I will miss him more than anyone will ever know. He was so laid back and chill. I know I could talk to him about anything, and he'd listen to every single word. It's the days that him and I would hang out on weekends, go to concerts together, and just have hour long conversations about music, movies, games, and just life in general that I will miss more than anything. R.I.P ZP, you will be missed but never forgotten."

-Dusty Uebelhor (12)

"Working with Zach was a joy. He always knew when I was upset and exactly how to fix it. A giggle out of his mouth formed a burst of laughter out of mine. He seemed to always genuinely care about everyone's problems. He thought that no matter the mountain they were climbing, he could help them up it. His heart was big enough to engulf the world in his love. No matter what happens in life, I know that I can keep going because of something Zach told me. 'Life's a river; sometimes you need to jump in head first.' Zach will always be loved."

-Amanda Collinsgru (12)

"Zach was my best friend, my worst enemy, and my boyfriend. You know how you have friends that you fight with but then you make up five minutes later? Zach and I were like that. We always had the best time watching crazy movies and going to the most beautiful places in Jasper. We grew closer everyday we spent together. The night Zach went missing, I was there along with friends and family. We were all together hoping they would find him. On Monday, May 18, 2009 at 11:45 a.m., they found him in the lake by the house he was at. It's hard to think about him being gone because to me, he is still in my heart."

-Erika Lamey (10)

"When I think of having a deep conversation about music, theology, or just life altogether, I remember Zach Patton. We had played music together a few times, as well as deep conversations about life, and I can remember how truly genuine he was. He was such an intelligent person, that has no doubt been an inspiration to many, as well as myself."

-Tony Soellner (12)

"I don't think Zach realized how much he would be missed regardless as a best friend or just a classmate. I see the effect of this awful situation, and hope that Zach can know about how much everyone cares about him. He is loved and missed by many. Our senior class will forever remember him."

Zach's favorite song: Stare into the Sun by Thrice

I sit here clutching useless lists, keys for doors that don't exist
I crack my teeth on pearls
I tear into the history
Show me what it means to me in this world
Yeah, in this world
'Cause I am due for a miracle
I'm waiting for a sign
I'll stare straight into the sun
And I won't close my eyes
Till I understand or go blind
I see the parts but not the whole
I study saints and scholars both
No perfect plan unfurls
Do I trust my heart or just my mind
Why is truth so hard to find in this world
Yeah in this world
'Cause I am due for a miracle
I'm waiting for a sign
I'll stare straight into the sun
And I won't close my eyes
Till I understand or go blind
(till I understand or go blind)

I know that there's a point I've missed
A shrine or stone I haven't kissed
A scar that never graced my wrist
A mirror that hasn't met my fist
But I can't help feeling like I'm
Due for a miracle
I'm waiting for a sign (waiting for a sign)
I'll stare straight
into the sun
And I won't close
my eyes
(and I won't close
my eyes)
Due for a miracle
I'm waiting for a
sign
I'll stare straight
into the sun
And I won't close
my eyes

graduation

Though underclassmen had to return to school for two more days worth of finals, the seniors participated in the commencement ceremony on Friday, May 22, 2009. Decked out in cap, gown, and for the females, some colorful high heels, the seniors entered the main gym in front of family and friends to celebrate the accomplishment of successfully completing high school.

The ceremony began with the Pledge of Allegiance, led by senior class President Mallory Burke. Salutatorian, Brandalyn Nordhoff then addressed those assembled. Senior speaker, Adam Dills was next to speak to his classmates. The JHS Choir then performed "Let the River Run", a selection by Jay Althouse. Outstanding Senior Girl, Mallory Burke and Outstanding Senior Boy, Andy Binkley were honored. Next, Valedictorians Anjuli Buechler and Greta Hurlbut addressed the crowd; after their valedictory addresses, the JHS Band and Choir performed "Battle Hymn of Republic". Finally, senior class Vice President Katie Hopf instructed her classmates to move the tassels on their caps. The new graduates then exited the gymnasium.

For most, the evening ended with stops at numerous graduation parties. Not all the graduates celebrated that evening, but some celebrations were held in the days and weeks that followed. For the Class of 2009, this graduation ceremony is both an end and a thrilling beginning.

Graduates arrive an hour before the commencement ceremony begins. They meet in the auxiliary gym to line up with their classmates. Here, Emily Flick, Danielle Wagner, and Jessica Schaeffer arrive in various stages of dress. Graduates wait as long as they can before putting on the gown due to the heat.

Time to Block

Freshman and Junior Varsity Football

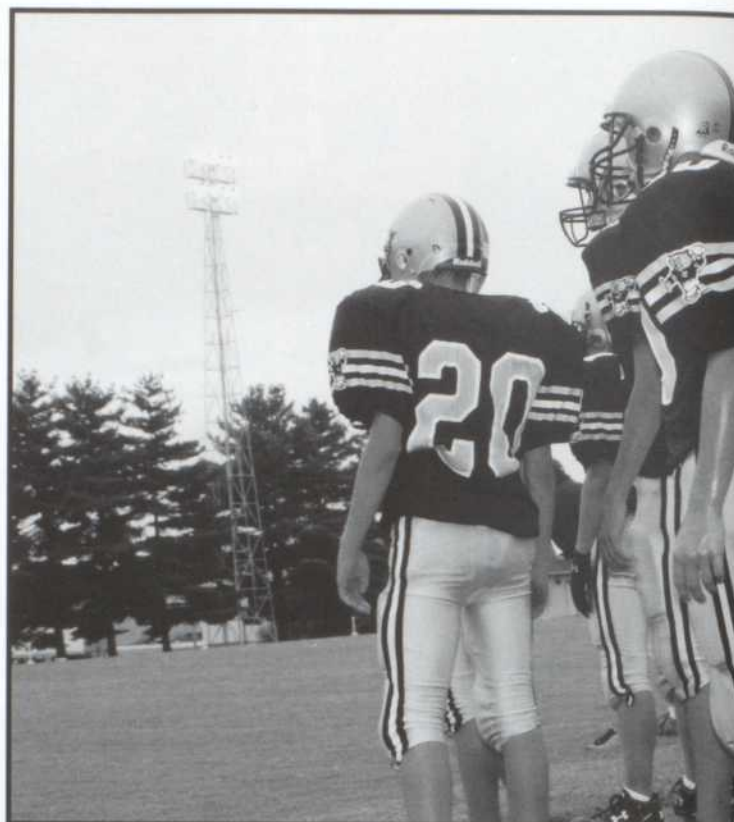

By Rachel Ackerman and Taylor Schulte

Putting forth time, commitment, and hard work resulted in outstanding seasons for both the JV and freshman football teams. With a final record of 6-1, the JV ended the year with a winning season. The juniors did an awesome job leading the JV team, shutting out rivals Castle, Vincennes Lincoln, and Princeton.

Although the freshman team ended this year with a record of 4-5, they continually improved as the season progressed. Defeating Heritage Hills, 8-0, early in the season and also ending the year with another victory against Heritage Hills were both major highlights for the freshman team.

While some of the key JV players grew into quality Varsity members, the freshman also became smarter, more mature players. "We had a very enjoyable season, and the future looks bright for JHS football," concluded Coach Jerger.

Tyler Krempp (11) and Taylor Day (10) stand on the sidelines, cheering on their teammates. The JV team ended the season with a 6-1 record.

Varsity Football

By Taylor Schulte

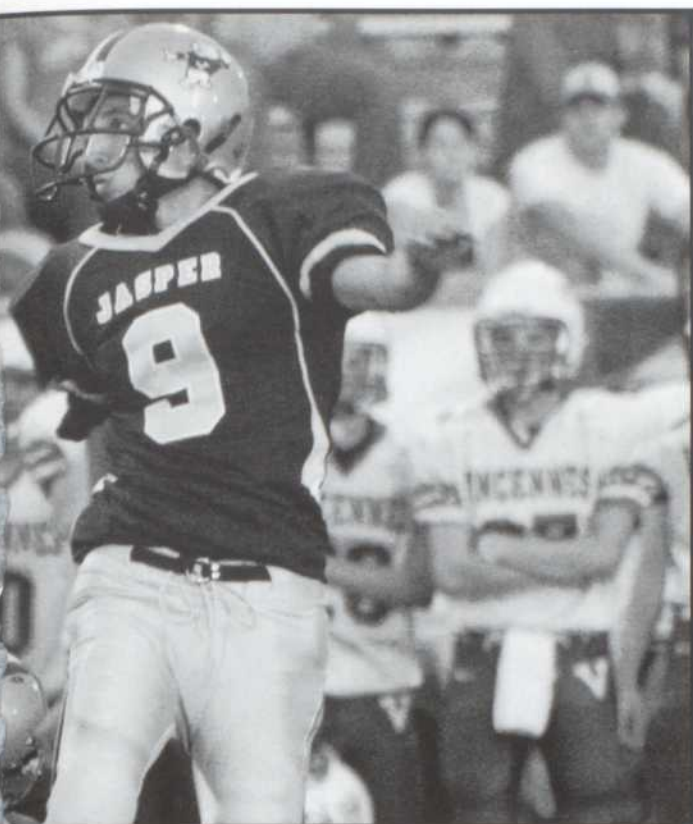

This year the Wildcats had an outstanding season. Some accomplishments included making it to regional and beating rival Heritage Hills 18-0. In the playoffs, the Cats beat Evansville Central 42-28 to advance onto Regionals. In Regionals they, unfortunately, lost to Columbus East 24-7, but they put up a good fight.

Coach Tony Ahrens says this: "We had an outstanding season. I am proud of each and every one of the players."

Aaron Miller, a sophomore, started Varsity some nights. He had this to say about starting as an underclassman, "It's a good chance to prove yourself to Coach Ahrens and a good way to get respect from the upperclassmen."

Overall, the Wildcats had a tremendous season, closing out with a record of 11-2, with losses coming only from rival Southridge and Columbus East in regional play.

Congratulations on a great season Cats!

Freshman and Junior Varsity Volleyball

By Kayla Russell

The Jasper volleyball program was spearheaded by new coaches this year; however, both the JV and freshman teams still experienced very successful seasons. The JV squad, led by Coach Amber Beasley, achieved an exciting record of 16-5. Coach Beasley was pleased with her team; she explained, "They always treated each other with respect and were not afraid to tell me if they felt something was affecting the team's potential." Some JV highlights included winning both the Jasper and Forest Park Invitationals.

The freshman team also had a good season, finishing up with a 14-4 record. Though the freshman team lost to Castle and Boonville early in the year, the girls worked hard to improve, and later in the season, the freshmen conquered Castle twice and Boonville once. Clearly, both teams had impressive seasons.

Alert, Rebecca Richardson (9) waits for the opposing team to serve. Being prepared to move is pivotal in every volleyball match.

The Varsity Volleyball team also had a new coach this year. Coach Deborah Giesler moved up from the freshman coaching position to lead the entire volleyball program. Coach Giesler admitted that it was a challenge to take on the role, but her team did what was asked of them, ending the season with a 21-12 record. Season highlights included defeating Providence and Boonville, as well as winning the Big 8 Conference. Coach Giesler ended by saying, "The girls worked extremely hard."

Boys' Cross Country

By Tara Beck

"On your mark... get set..." BANG! That is what you will hear at the beginning of a cross country meet. Coach Kevin Schipp said this about the season: "The highlight of the season was winning the Big 8 Championship. The team beat Princeton for the first time." The season also had its down points, though. "One of the biggest challenges this season was consistency in the races." That was not enough to keep the boys from running their hardest, with 15 wins and 7 losses.

Adam Dills (12) said that winning a race by 30 seconds was the highlight of his season, and when asked what was the best part of the season for him, Nick Mehringer replied, "It was probably when we won conference. We really worked as a team and helped push each other to do our best." For William Disinger (10), "The season was a success because the team had won conference and the runners were running faster."

Edwin Cortez (11), Nick Mehringer (9), and Kory Voelkel (11) lead the pack of runners. With these guys leading the team, the boys were able to take the top spot at the Big 8 Conference Meet.

Girls' Cross Country

By Tara Beck and Andrea Gregory

"The season was very enjoyable. The girls worked hard and had a lot of fun together," said Coach Schipp when asked about this year's cross country season. The girls' varsity cross country team ran nine invitationals and the JV team ran four. Out of the thirteen invitationals, they won three and also succeeded in winning the Big 8 Conference for the 5th year in a row. Throughout the entire season they had 46 wins and 21 losses. Rachel Mehringer and Lindsay Barth, the outstanding runners for the team, helped the team by setting an example and encouraging each other to do better.

"Cross Country definitely improves my running, especially this year," Rachel said, reflecting on her running in the past. Contrary to what many people believe, cross country isn't just about running. The girls bond and become a tight knit group. The bonding begins with a campout over the summer. Those friendships help motivate the girls to run even harder.

Girls' Soccer

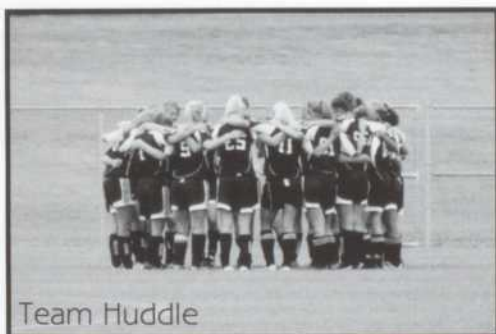

By Rachel Ackerman

"Sunrise With Soccer" was the theme for the girls' soccer team this year, as they began practices as early as 6:00 AM over the summer. Dedication, hard work, and perseverance built both the JV and Varsity teams winning seasons.

The Junior Varsity team started off the season with a record of 5-0. Although the winning streak ended when they went up against Evansville Memorial, the JV ended their season with a record of 6-5. With their experience and leadership, the junior and senior girls lead the underclassmen to become better players, physically and mentally.

In an attempt to repeat last year's regional victory, the Varsity team pushed themselves and each other, giving their all, all the time. Though the Cats didn't win the Sectional title this year, they still had a tremendous season, beating their rival, Washington, twice. Hours of practicing penalty kicks paid off when the girls went into a PK shoot out against Washington in their first sectional game. The Varsity team had many outstanding players this year, including Anna Thyen as the team's leading scorer and Kelsey Nelson the Varsity goal keeper. The team's upperclassmen lead the Varsity to a winning season of 11-7-1.

"We've got some good mental toughness, and I'm very proud of them," concluded Coach Anthony Price.

Boys' JV and Freshman Basketball

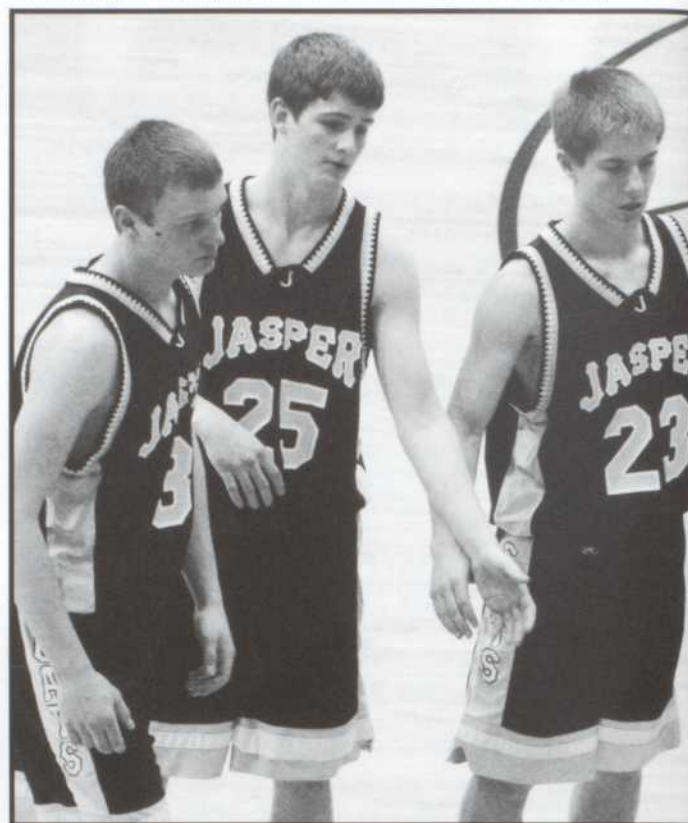

By Rachel Ackerman

Both the JV and the Freshman Basketball teams were untouchable this year. Each team ended their season with a winning record. The JV went 18-2 and the Freshman team went 12-7.

Zach Eckert, junior, led the JV team in rebounds, assists, and steals. Losing only two games and going 6-0 in the conference were major accomplishments of the year. The JV team's hard work and commitment really paid off when the Cats went into overtime twice this season, coming out each time with a win. As the players continually improved a few boys got to see playing time at the Varsity level. "This team worked extremely hard and it showed in their 18-2 record." — Coach Albrand

After smoothing out a rough spot at the beginning of the season, the Freshman team was also successful this year. Teamwork and dedication were key in pulling off their five-game winning streak. The boys lost to Vincennes, after four overtimes, by one point. But then came back strong and defeated Heritage Hills, by three, after two overtimes. The freshman boys have a lot of potential, making the future for Wildcat Basketball very bright. "I was very proud of this team. Each one of them worked very hard and contributed to our team." — Coach Wolf

Boys' Varsity Basketball

By Kayli Gramelspacher and Nicole Seidl

The boys' basketball team ended the year with a record of 10-10. In play against county rivals, they lost to Southridge, but came back and beat Forest Park, which was a very intense game. They also beat NE Dubois in their closest game of the year, 59-58. Coach Goebel had this to say about his team. "I feel that we could have done better, but overall I'm pretty proud of my team. We beat Forest Park, which was big for us and Booneville, which also was big and very close. I am very excited for next year, since we will have most of our team back except for four of them." The four seniors contributed to the team as well. "I am very proud of the seniors this year. They showed leadership to the rest of the team and helped the underclassmen when they needed a little advice," says Coach Ahlbrand. "The boys, I feel, are ready for next year, and even though they need some work, I feel that they will persevere through it all. With a little hard work and determination we will do good next year," finishes Coach Goebel.

Time for Freethrows

Girls' JV and Freshman Basketball

By Taylor Schulte

The JV team had a winning season, with an ending record of 10-8. They put in a lot of time and effort to be able to end with a winning record and improve as much as they did. Several of the JV members also contributed to the Varsity team.

The freshman team had a good season too, considering most of their games were canceled due to weather and many were never made up. The girls won their county tournament, which was a big accomplishment. They also beat Washington when Washington was undefeated.

Overall, it was a good season for both teams.

Time to Breakaway

Girls' Varsity Basketball

By Taylor Schulte

The Lady Cats ended this basketball season with a 9-12 record. After losing to county rival Southridge twice, they started learning from their mistakes and improving as the season went on. Some of the team's highlights included beating Castle on Senior Night and beating Forest Park and Dubois, the two other county rivals. The girls also faced some challenges. They had to play four games in a six day stretch the week right before sectional started. They also had to deal with inexperience. Only a few players had significant Varsity time before this season. On the flip side, seniors, Janessa Wolf, Katie Hopf, and Shyai Laubscher demonstrated good leadership throughout the season. Also, "The juniors were very instrumental in our success this year," says Coach Ryan Erny. The girls competed hard and didn't give up until the end, even when they were down. "The biggest thing that I've learned is that if the girls respect you and your approach to the game, they will give you everything that they have on the floor," says Coach Erny about his first season as the head coach.

RAWR. A roar erupts as a giant pink shark launches itself out of the water. Wait. No, scratch that. Although it would be kind of awesome if there was a giant shark in the school pool, the only 'sharks' are the members of our swim team as they swimingly swim through the water, their only prey being victory. According to Coach Vaughn, the team did face some challenges this season. "Finding the best line up was a challenge. We have several talented guys, and we wanted to be sure to put forth our best team performance, which meant moving guys around at times," she explained. The team ended the season with an impressive 11-2 record and a Conference Championship Title. Speaking of records, the 200 medley relay record was raised to a new standard by Derek Schwenk, Alex Hawkins, Chris Weisheit, and Garrett Daily. With that performance, the aforementioned record breaking relay team (Chris Weisheit also competed in the 200 and 100 fly), and Heath Hanselman (diving) made it onto the All Conference Team. Also, Noah Balsmeyer was honored as an Academic All American.

Time to Dive

Girls' Swimming

By McKenzie Ellis

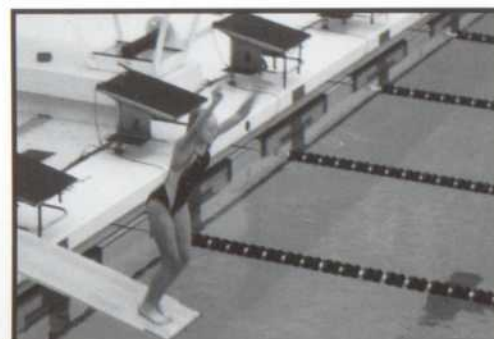

Of all the creatures in the sea, none are faster, stronger, or more deadly than sharks. None, except the Wildcats. The girls' swim team this year was very young, but also very outstanding. They worked extremely hard and had a positive atmosphere around them, making them a joy to work with. One of the highlights of the season was winning sectional and the outstanding 400 Free Relay at sectional. The team swept diving at conference and sectional, defeating the competition. One of the most valuable members of the team was Greta Hurlbut. "She was a great competitor and always stepped it up for relays," says Coach Vaughn. All in all, this swimming season went rather swimmingly for the girls' swim team. The divers also did a divingly good job.

Wrestling

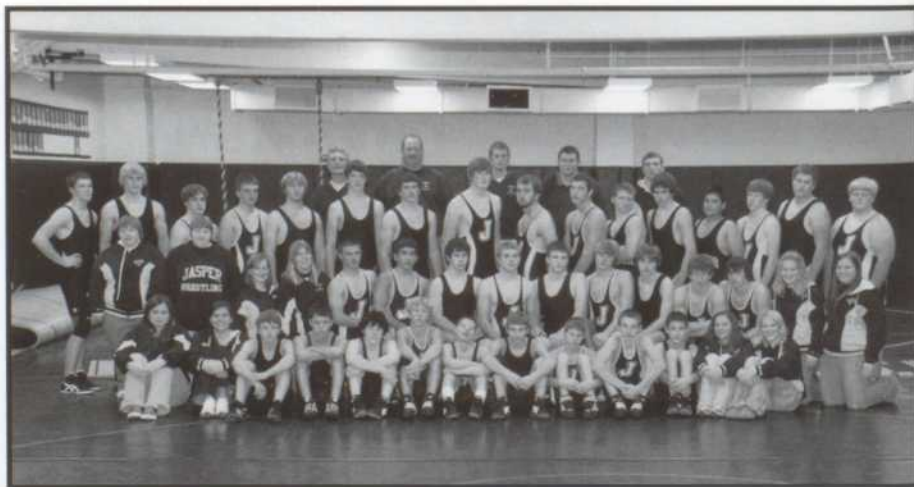

By Kayla Russell

The wrestling team once again experienced a successful year, achieving 41 winning seasons in a row. However, there were some challenges that had to be met first. "This was a young and inexperienced team at the start of the season," Rick Stenftenagel, the head wrestling coach stated. Senior leadership from Adam Kunkel and Alex Linne helped bring the boys to victory. This year's outstanding wrestler was junior, Tyler Jenkins. Tyler was victorious at both sectional and regional, and qualified for semi-state. Another team leader was Andrew Jones (11). He pinned his sectional opponent in 17 seconds, placed third regional, and qualified for semi-state. "I was extremely proud of our progress and the competitiveness of this team," concluded Coach Stenftenagel.

Cheerleading

By Nicole Seidl

While many athletes choose to work on the skills for their sport all year long, cheerleading is the only sport where the athletes are kept busy throughout the year. The season begins in the spring with tryouts, continues into the summer with camps, practices, and competitions, and persists into the fall for football and the winter for basketball. The girls attempt to get the student body into the spirit at pep sessions and games. They work their tails off preparing for state and national competitions. Their season truly lasts all year long. The squads become like family. Hannah Whalen said, "This year really was awesome. My fellow cheerleaders were exceptionally nice to each other and helped each other with stuff we had trouble with." This year's squad was led by seniors Allison Matsel and Taylor Schneider.

JV and Freshman Baseball

By Dillon Ameling

Both the JV and freshman baseball teams had successful seasons. JV Coach Jason Ahlbrand was very pleased with his team; "I feel that this team has improved from day one to the end as much as any team I've coached in my 12 years." The season wasn't all highlights. The wet spring weather delayed and cancelled numerous games, and Coach Ahlbrand explained that it was challenging to get the young men to adjust to the expectations of the high school program. Led by pitchers Luke Rogers, Karson Nixon, and Casey Nelson and top hitters Caleb Begle, Dane Giesler, and Luke Rogers, the JV squad ended the year with a 14-6 record and championship at the JV tourney. The freshman team also prevailed over the wet weather to end with a successful record of 10-2.

Softball

"Play ball!" is what you will hear at the start of every softball game. The Cats ended their regular season with a 21-6 record, and they were 5-1 in conference. The team was lead by senior Ashtynn Masterson, who ended her season with 20-5 pitching record. All seniors contributed, each in their own way. Sectional was a very "early ending" for the Cats. With the game starting at 10:49 at night and ending at 12:39 the next morning, the Cats played their best, but the effort just wasn't quite enough. They lost to Pike Central 4-1. At the post season banquet outstanding Varsity players were recognized. All Conference; Kelsey Rupert, Brittney Hopf, and Ashtynn Masterson, Most Valuable Player; Brittney Hopf, Mental Attitude; Kyla Stenftenagel. All District; Brittney Hopf, All State and All Star; Kelsey Rupert. JV ended their season on a 2-14 mark. The wet weather made it difficult for the JV squad to get the momentum they needed.

Logan Bonifer (12) led the discus, while Dylan Fehribach (12) excelled in shot put. Finally, junior Tyler Krempp demonstrated lots of skill in long jump. Despite these standouts, Assistant Coach Kevin Schipp explained, "We had a very young team, but they competed hard and improved throughout the season." Due to the inexperience and some unfortunate injuries, the team didn't end the season quite where they'd hoped to be.

The girls' track team enjoyed another successful season. One of the challenges of the season was competing on the road so often; the girls only got to run at Jasper for four meets. However, one of the most memorable moments came on the road: repeating as Big 8 Champions! The team was full of talented young ladies. Several girls made the Big 8 All-Conference Team. They were Stephanie Kalb, Sami Schmitt, Nikki DeKemper, Tara Brescher, and Tara Wenzel. Nine athletes also qualified for the regional meet: Sami, Tara Wenzel, Rachel Mehringer, Micah Kilian, Madysan Bell, Tara Brescher, Lindsay Barth, Erica Welp, and Jami Marsicano. Leadership came from Senior Leadership Award Winner Stephanie Kalb, as well as the other seniors. And Rachel Mehringer, Die Hard Award Winner, led by example, giving her all in every meet and practice. Other standouts included Most Field Event Points Co-Winners Sami Schmitt and Nikki DeKemper and Most Running Points Winner Tara Brescher. Coach Joan Schaeffer is excited about the future; she said, "We have many talented track girls returning next year, in addition to a talented incoming freshman class."

CLASS OF 2012

Sarah Barry loves to entertain.

Another freshman class has come and gone! The freshman class of 2009 showed lots of school spirit. Many freshmen greatly contributed to our school's clubs, organizations, and athletic programs. These freshmen overcame many new changes, including new teachers, new classes, new freedom, and more responsibilities. But along with these transitions came many new friends and many new memories. This class was willing to come together to help each other and our school, but also knew how to have fun while doing so. Over the next three years this class will definitely make an impact on our school. This year was only just the beginning of a journey that will never be forgotten.

Natalie Beck and Maria Schmitt cheer at a football game.

Freshman year is a time for students to find their niche. Here, Amanda Reckelhoff smiles during a Marching Band performance.

Class Officers

"I wanted to be the class President so I could be more involved in school and giving my class a voice to be heard. I think our class has a lot of spirit and passion."

Sarah Barry

"I wanted to be the Vice President because I thought I was responsible enough for the job. Everything went really well this year, like the Thanksgiving dinner and the homecoming dance."

Greg Hopkins

"Being the Secretary seemed cool when I signed up. Our class is full of fun people that have made the year go by a lot faster. We are just classy."

Jud Goodness

"We have a really fun class! Our class has a lot of potential, and I'm glad I got to be the Treasurer this year. Freshman year was awesome, and I know the next three years will be even better!"

Rachel Ackerman

What do you like about high school?

I like that in high school I have more freedom, like wearing clothes that I like rather than worrying about tucking in my shirt all the time.

-Ali Schitter

How have you been involved with school and your class this year?

I am in cheerleading, so I attend every game to support our team spirit. I am also in Spanish Club.

I have a passion for the language and learning about the culture. I am also in Key Club. Helping people is just what I like to do!

CLASS OF 2011

Julie Tobin

Two years have flown by quickly, but two years remain. Hopefully the next two will pass with as much success and camaraderie as the first two. The class of 2011 worked hard but also had fun this year. Class choices have expanded, giving new freedom and allowing new interests to be discovered. Roman Day was a great experience. Everyone had a lot of fun, and there was plenty of good food.

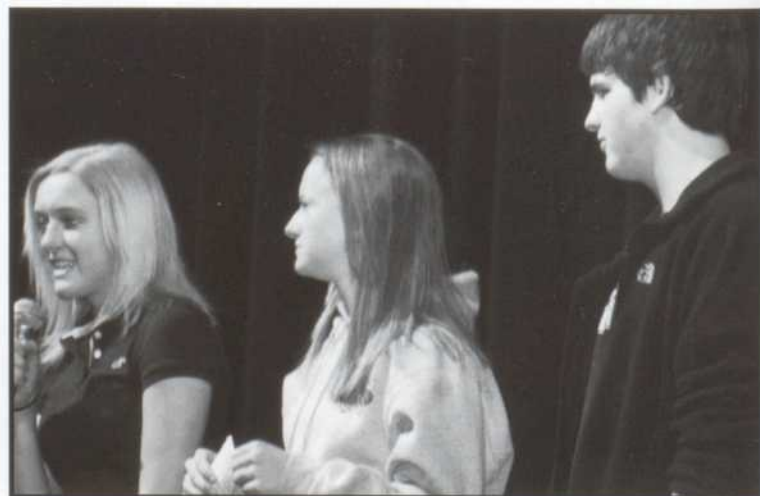

Togas, made from bedsheets of every color, style and expense were worn, giving the students a fun way to learn and live in Roman history. Another event the sophomore class took part in was job shadowing. They had the freedom to leave school and learn from business people what it takes to do the job and do it right. The class of 2011 has had great experiences this year and hopefully, they will have a better next year.

Liesl Eck concentrates on her next move, hoping to defeat her opponent in a game of chess. Chess club met weekly throughout the year.

Kimberly Gootee performs in Shakespeare Revue, the theater class's contribution to the Shakespeare Festival.

Ashten Neukam, Lauren Monesmith, and Zach Hooper try to get their classmates' votes for class president. Though it was a close race, Ashten will fill the position for the class's junior year.

Class Officers

"The sophomore class did an awesome job keeping up the spirit and keeping up their attitudes. I believe everyone enjoyed this year, even though it flew by."

Aubree Block

"I was on the Spirit Committee of Student Council, so I got to help plan the pep sessions which was a lot of fun because we get to come up with the theme and ideas of what to do."

Lauren Monesmith

"I believe that this year was a success because a lot was accomplished. There was more participation, and we had a lot of fun this year."

Paula Quinn Ruff

"We (class officers) came up with some new ideas, like the two-hour dance and the teacher Fear Factor, which made everybody happy. Yes, this year was a success."

CLASS OF 2010

Josh Elliot

"Junior year is great because you finally get a taste of being upperclassmen. You watch friends start for varsity games and direct club meetings. You finally become leaders in the school!" said Class President Tori Bawel. This year, the class got... not much done, but what they did pull together turned out great. Prom this year was spectacularly cool, and major kudos to the relatively small group comprised of Mrs. Keusch, class officers, and some volunteers, who made the "Twilight in Central Park" theme come to life. Anyway, despite certain discrepancies, this year has been fairly successful, especially for those that did all the work, and as far as anyone knows, there were no deaths from the consumption of poinsettias this year. Next year this class will return at the top of the totem pole.

Kory Voelkel enjoys nice weather on the afternoon of the PTO Cookout. Students and teachers alike enjoy the longer lunch and outside setting of the cookout.

Claudia Juarez lays on a bed of nails with her head propped up on books. Yay science!

Where do you hang out with your friends the most outside of school? Why do you go there?

On the open road. The world is a big place out there, and my friends and I love to explore the land beyond Jasper. You never know what you can find out there.

If you had to become a teacher what subject would you teach and why? I would probably teach English. Why? I was inspired by my middle school English teacher. When we were studying poetry, she let us express ourselves by standing on our desks and screaming "Oh captain, my captain!" Would you rather have a job that was conducted indoors or outside? Why? Outside! If it's the summer anyway. I love the heat since I am a naturally cold person all the time. I love nature too, but just the feel of warm, fresh air and the commotion of the town relaxes me.

Time For Senior Shenanigans

Class of 2009 Seniors

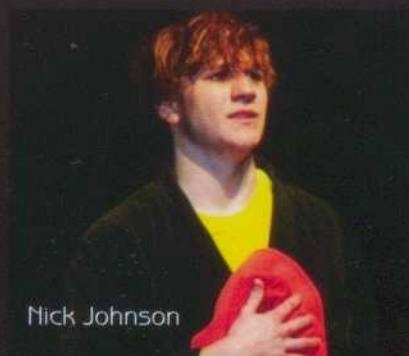

Jake Eckert Imitates Spiderman

The Class of 2009 is full of individuals who each have their share of unique abilities. From great performers to touch down makers, this class did it all.

The class officers worked hard to lead their class. Through volunteering, supporting fellow classmates, and leading the school for one year, the senior class attempted to leave a legacy to represent them once they have moved on.

Every piece of hard work and planning has lead to this bittersweet moment, the end of the senior year. Seniors study hard, work hard, and play hard. And, as they prepare to leave the security of JHS, now is the time for the seniors to show the world the people that they've become.

Nick Johnson

Class Officers

"This year I have helped organize several projects for the senior class, including our last class homecoming back drop. I try to encourage positive school spirit to others and have enjoyed going to cheer on and support my classmates at various sporting events throughout the year."

Mallory Burke

"This year I served as co-chairman of the recycling committee. Our focus this year as a council was to encourage the school to go green!"

Katie Hopf

"I think our class really came together and bonded this year to handle all the responsibilities we endured. I have had an amazing senior year!"

Kelly Baer

"As Treasurer, I have kept track of the money we have in our account. I also helped design the graduation invitations. They turned out great!"

Could this be the last Senior Week?

With new state legislation pushing for all students to log the maximum amount of time in the classroom, rumors swirl that Senior Week could soon be a thing of the past. Some of our seniors shared their thoughts on the situation and what they are most looking forward to during this year's Senior Week.

"I am looking forward to hanging out with my friends and enjoying the outdoors."

- Ben Braunecker

"I am looking forward to celebrating the success of our senior class."

- Logan Kern

"I am looking forward to having fun with my class

before we all go away and making memories." - Brittany Kordes

"I'm excited about having time off of school."

-Dana Knust

"I am looking forward to relaxing."

- Alex Linne

"Having time off to relax and getting to hang out with friends."

-Robin Hopf

"I am looking forward to celebrating memories."

- Alex Krempp

"I am looking forward to not having to come to school for a week."

-Erika Mehringer

"Saying that I am done with school."

-Derek Keusch

"Seeing everyone for one last time."

- Janessa Wolf

"Partying and having fun with my class

one more time before we graduate." - Marissa Main

"I am looking forward to just relaxing and spending time with my friends."

-Mallory Burke

"It's nice to know we have something to look forward to." - Kalyssa Eversman

"I am looking forward to just having fun and spending time with my friends."

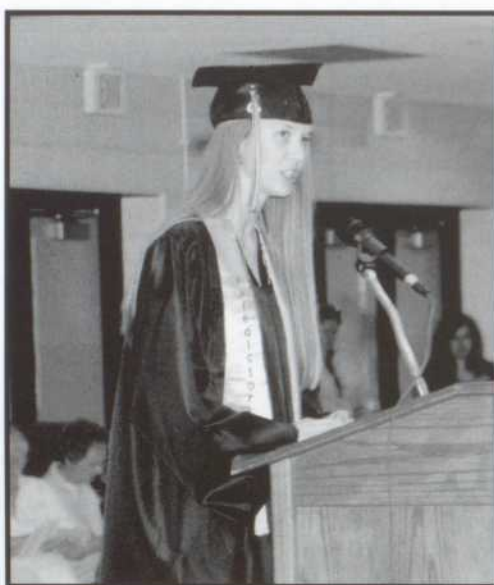

- Kelsie Margarida

2009 retirees

Mr. Jerald Roberts
Principal

After 38 years spent exclusively in the Greater Jasper School Corporation, Mr. Jerald Roberts will retire. Mr. Roberts earned Bachelor's and Master's Degrees from the University of Evansville and Principal Certification from ISU. Mr. Roberts credits one of his high school teachers, Mr. Kermit Webb Johnson, as his inspiration to become an educator. Mr. Johnson encouraged Mr. Roberts while he was in high school and urged him to continue his education in college. Mr. Roberts has always enjoyed working with students and helping to design projects that are helpful to those students. He takes pride in the academic achievement and success JHS students achieve outside of the school walls. Mr. Roberts gives advice, saying that it is easier to work with, rather than for, someone. He also says that you shouldn't let anyone tell you that you can't do something because they are only limiting your abilities. In the coming years, Mr. Roberts still plans to attend JHS sporting and performing arts events. He also hopes to attend more of his grandchildren's school events. Lastly, he hopes to become involved in local service activities.

Mr. Kevin Haycox will retire after 35 years in the classroom. Mr. Haycox earned Bachelor's and Master's degrees from Purdue University. Mr. Haycox explains, "I feel very fortunate to have been an agriculture teacher at JHS for 35 years. I knew from my senior year what I wanted to do as a career. I never wavered from that goal the four years I attended Purdue University. What is really neat is that my supervising teacher (when I student taught at North Decatur High School) asked me if I had any school to pick from where would I go and my reply to him was Jasper High School." Mr. Haycox reached that goal and has spent his entire career at JHS, acting as the FFA sponsor as well as the agriculture teacher. He says he has especially enjoyed the unique relationship that an ag teacher has with his students. Because FFA is an intracurricular organization, he feels there is an advantage to being an advisor to the organization as well as being a teacher to those students in the classroom. He explains that we are becoming an agriculturally illiterate people, so Mr. Haycox encourages students to take an ag class. As for the future, Mr. Haycox will work with his insurance agency, continue to educate at a community college, and even pop in at JHS from time to time.

Agriculture

Mrs. Gail Eckerle
Health Occupations

Mrs. Gail Eckerle has decided to retire this year as well. As the Health Occupations teacher, Mrs. Eckerle's career was not always spent in the classroom. She spent time working as a nurse in the Intensive Care and Skilled Care Units at Memorial Hospital, worked for 14 years as a school nurse, and taught for 12 years. Mrs. Eckerle has enjoyed working with the people at JHS, explaining that this school corporation has been a part of her life since she was 5 years old. The best thing about teaching, in Mrs. Eckerle's eyes, has been helping students choose their health careers and seeing them get excited about the health field. Although, working with the schedules and grading scales of six different schools has been a challenge. In retirement, Mrs. Eckerle plans to play with her grandchildren, do some fishing and knitting, and continue to work with people. She urges students and adults alike, "Work hard and take time to laugh."

After 26 years, Mrs. Jane Winter will retire as the librarian at JHS. Mrs. Winter holds Bachelor's Degrees in English and Library Science and a Master's Degree in Education from Indiana State University. Mrs. Winter was inspired to follow this career path in large part by her mother, who always worked for libraries allowing Mrs. Winter to grow up loving books and reading. Mrs. Winter has enjoyed instilling that love of reading in the young adults who have filtered through JHS. One of her favorite memories occurred when Mr. Phil Kendall read an excerpt from "Green Eggs and Ham" for Teen Read Week. She also recalls Mr. Don Noblitt (the principal when she began at JHS) saying that by the time she retired computers would replace the library and books would be obsolete. Mrs. Winter admits that he was partly right, but she hopes printed books never become obsolete. In retirement, Mrs. Winter plans to spend more time with her grandchildren, find a part time job, and of course spend time reading. She closes with advice, saying that we should all "enjoy the time at JHS – the years fly by fast!"

Some lessons stay with you.

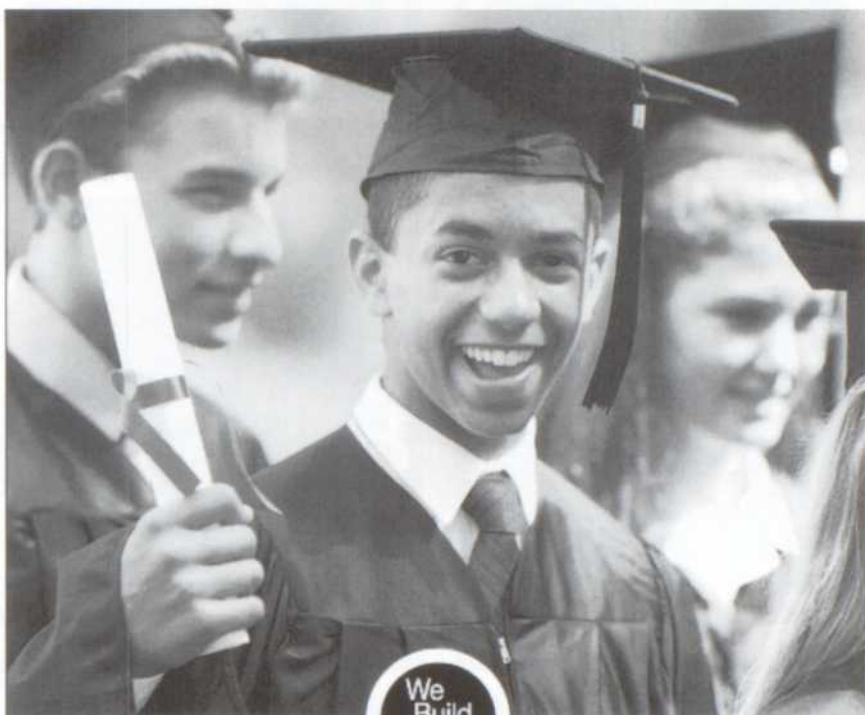

From pre-school to high school, you're growing, learning and changing. And each step of the way, the lessons that last a lifetime are the ones that teach you teamwork, integrity, responsibility and community. Jasper High School is a great place to learn those values, and that's why Old National Bank is a proud supporter of Jasper's students, faculty and activities.

CLEARLY GREEN

We believe that buying green should be simple.

That's why our GREENGUARD Certified UV Advantage finish comes standard.

- Standard pricing
- Standard lead times
- Standard on every product in four casegood lines
- Standard on every exposed surface...not just the top surface

At Indiana Furniture, being green is standard business. We've been wise stewards of our resources for more than 100 years because it makes sense for our business, for the people who work here, for those who use our furniture, and for the world in which we live.

Products with our UV Advantage meet the requirements of LEED Credit 4.5 and meet ANSI/BIFMA standard X7.1 for low-emitting office furniture systems.

Where do we go from here?

Welcome to the end of time. We've come to the closing, hurtling at the speed of light, rushing to the finale. Throughout our journey, we've had our doubts, dreams, fears and victories. Each student who has walked these halls has their own story, their own personal rising action and climax. Conflicts arise and plots twist, as they usually do, but we've made it to the conclusion. Throughout the year we rush like mad through the minutes, periods, weeks, semesters, until all of a sudden the year is gone and we're walking out the doors for the last time (seniors), into the future, into the final frontier: real life. It's a scary, exhilarating thing, like eating something new. The smell could make you nauseous, and it might look a bit funny. But there's always that possibility that it could be the best thing you've ever tasted in your life. Either that or you'll end up hunched over barfing your guts out. But the odds are in your favor. You can always throw those lemons back if you don't like 'em.

We've reached the end, but it's really just a time out for some, a break from the tumulting chaos of school. But past all the tribulation, tests, and stale fries, it's been a good enough time. We try. As we've reached the end, it's really just the beginning of a new era in our lives. But if you look back, with hindsight vision, you may notice: we hope you've had the time of your life.

For many students, Prom is one of the last big hurrahs. Here, Gunnar Nedreberg (12) cuts loose and enjoys the evening at Prom.

Who Thought Of That?

This year was a year of new beginnings for the yearbook staff. The staff was a brand new staff and overall on the young side. Nobody knew what was going on to begin the year, but the staff quickly buckled down to learn the eDesign program and headed off to events for picture taking. This is also the first year for a chronological yearbook, which we honestly hope you enjoy. The staff worked diligently to finish this year's book. Work was done in the evenings, on the weekends, and even into the months of June and July.

The atmosphere in the yearbook room is usually very laid back and there is a lot of joking around going on. But, leadership, especially from senior Amanda Collinsgru, was required to keep everyone on task. Overall this year was a year of learning and a year of creating friendships.

Freshmen, Nicole Seidl, Andrea Gregory, and Tara Beck work to meet their deadline. Problems with computers often slowed productivity, but staffers worked hard to get the book done.

"It is nice to know that I'm almost done and to feel like I accomplished something! Throughout the year, I felt that I was being looked up to; the mother duck if you will. Yearbook creates professionals; you learn to meet deadlines, and you become more mature. My favorite part of the year, was when we made up the spread layouts; it gave everyone a voice and an opinion. We learned to collaborate and work together. Since everyone was new, we didn't know everyone's strong points, but by second semester we had a good idea who everyone was
